KING(SLEY)

Kingsley Machine M-60

Made in the 1930's, the M-60 Kingsley was one of the most iconic hotstamping machine of its time. It features a fully analogue temperature control unit and manual press. Type needed to be manually set, centred, and slotted for heating. It is our mainstay equipment feature which we have multiple units of, and we provide additional machines for high profile events to ensure smooth running and instantaneous replacement in the rare case of a breakdown.

The duration of each print depends on the number of characters. As a ballpark figure, every character will take 30-seconds to set, heat, print, and reset. An 11-character name, for instance "J.P. MORGAN" will take about 5 minutes. Blank spaces and symbols like "." are counted as characters as they add to the time taken for typesetting.

Spatial requirements:

Machine footprint - 25cm width x 35cm depth x 30cm height Working space - 45cm x 60cm minimum
