IKEA Returns Policy Very Sturdykiera07091 got this bed when I was about to and I'm 20 now, and it's just starting to show some wear and tear. The step I always floor is a bit hectic and the plank by my feet is cracked I think kick it, but it's still 100% stable and safe.565 yr old grandma built it alone! DebbZee had no problem. I did it all by myself. No problem.5 Excellent bunk bed for my elementary children! AvengerMomReal wood and solid — we love this bed!! Actually, we have two of them. Very happy children; very happy parents!5So glad we bought! Harper27 was arrested last month and the kids are really enjoying the bed. It is not complicated to assemble and with two people prob took about 1.5 hours. Robust and well done. I love that it's not too high off the floor, but enough space for storage underneath. Also so the top bunk safety rail is high and makes our child feel very safe. Hooray!5Good belkNelleOverall, it's a good bunk bed for my little ones. It should work while my children are small, but I noticed that the lower planks fold easily when my little 4-year-old moves from one area to another.4For the whole final product, but hard to assembleSpinurnal love the final product. We are not new to assembling Ikea parts. So, just to let you know, this was the longest intensive time of all our purchases. Good luck!5Great Valuebagofbagels After searching for used bunk beds, I found that these were about the same price, new, and could be painted/stained in any color I wanted for the girls' room. These were very easy to assemble and are sturdy for our younger children. I'm thinking of buying another set for our boys' room too.4GREAT bunk bedsHoltzclaw These bunk beds are amazing! They are very resistant and do not make creek or make noise. Definitely a job to put them together, but it's worth it! They are a good time, and not as high as most sets we look at. Great price too. The best part is that the wood is unfinished so you can do whatever you want with them! We plan to smear them with a rich color, but you could paint them too!5Solid, good looking bunk frameNc2001Bought this a few weeks ago, and so far so good. The frame is sturdy and not estridex, and the unfinished wood really looks very nice. Great value. The only thing I would say I could improve is that the stair slats are pretty thin, so for adults climbing is very uncomfortable at the feet.4Fantastic bedsherill77I have been searching bunk for a few months now for my 6 year old son, and I went to look at this at Ikea a few weeks ago. Someone complained that the head of the bed needed to be higher, but now that it's on top, I think it's okay. Someone also complained that putting the slates on the bed was and I think that was the easiest part. I had problems with the tool tightening the fasteners. It could be a little bigger and I have small hands. I am a woman of 77 years and put this along with myself with the help of my 66 old when I had to have it hold one side for me so I could attach the bottom bed.5MkonoQuality material. Very robust and robust configuration, very sturdy JeaniebeanieThe configuration is easy if you pay attention to the assembly instructions. All parts were included and no stingers were missing. It looks pretty tough to hold two 7 year old boys who loved the setup.5Mica Boo! Love this perfect bunk bed for my kids!5Good... but it could be betterEl2020Good bed, but it had so many parts!!! You had to hammer on all the individual slats - your hands will hurt in the end. Also, if you have active kids jumping on the bed, the screws will get a little loose after a while - you'll need to squeeze them from time to time. We also found that this wood has a very strong smell, so if you have bad allergies you may not be able to sleep in your bed for 1 month (this is what happened to my daughter).3Joan62This is a great bed for small children and is low enough to accommodate ceiling fans.5Mary4773 I am very pleased with the bunk beds. They are resilient and the grandchildren love it!5Great value!anamacThis was a great purchase, my daughters love their new beds. The price is great value and looks robust and above all a space saver! It had to be assembled by two people. I like the height, I think it's safe for my kids.5Great Bunk! JW528Key for why I bought this bed, it's all wood! no partial board or synthetic materials used! Fits the need and space for it. The only reason not to give 5 stars is on the short edge plates the keyhole wasn't drilled right and I had to make them deeper for the bed to go along. It's no big deal for me, but it would have been for some.4Sturdier so ExpectedDAXXXFrame is much more solid than I expected. The lower bunk should have more slats to form a higher headboard.4PerfectMrsSiSiRazo424I bought this for my daughters small room, to help open up some space. And it's perfect! I love the neutrality of wood and the options it offers for change in the future!5future!
