Ragnar benson books pdf

American writer Not to be confused with Ragnar Benson (entrepreneur). Ragnar Benson is the pseudonym of a prolific survivalist writer who specializes in readiness topics, especially survival retreats, hunting, trapping, tight medicine, false identification, explosives, firearms and improvised weapons. Many of his 46 books were published by Loompanics Unlimited (which went bankrupt in 2004) and by Paladin Press. Both Benson and Paladin Press are controversial,[1] because actually formulating or constructing many of the explosives and weapons that he describes would be illegal in most jurisdictions. Some of his books have been banned (challenged) from importing into Canada, by Customs Canada censors at the Connaught Building. His book Ragnar's Guide to Home and Recreational Use of High Explosives was reportedly pulled from distribution in 1999. [2] The secretive private life of Benson has revealed very few details about his background and personal life. His real name has not been revealed publicly. He was reportedly born in Indiana and grew up on a farm where dynamite was used for utilitarian purposes. [3] As of 1999, he lived . . . on nine acres in southern Idaho with his pet skunks and his wife and 100-plus guns of varying caliber. [2] He was apparently the son of a German immigrant. (In his book Urban Survival, he talks about some of his father's experiences growing up in Germany after World War I.) Benson has traveled a lot and has had no solid career. In the story of his book Bull's Eye: Crossbow, Benson mentions that at one point he worked as an arms dealer in Rhodesia. In a rare interview with Salon magazine, he mentioned that he . . . learned about man traps while serving as an agricultural specialist in rural Southeast Asia. [2] In the story of another book Homemade C4 – A Recipe for Survival Benson mentions that he had fired an M72 LAW rocket while at Fort Benning, Georgia, home of the U.S. Army infantry. In the same book, Benson continues to state that he attended the Army's Tank Commander school, somewhat reserved for a senior enlisted soldier (E-6, SSG). Benson has also worked intermittently as a private investigator for more than 25 years. [4] As of 2010, he was 72 years old. [5] His writing rate has slowed down in recent years. In 2007, he authored the preface to James Ballou's book Long-Term Survival in the Coming Dark Age: Preparing to Live After Society Crumbles. On Dec 3, 2010 Ragnar Benson was interviewed on the Omega Man Radio Show by Shannon Ray Davis for over two hours. [5] In the interview, he mentioned that he had traveled to more than 90 countries.
