Nail and string art geometric patterns

Nail art is the best. But often you need to spend an arm and a leg to get it. The idea of doing it yourself is laughable. But we have four ways you can do perfectly nail your art - no frustration including. Make it shine in marc jacobs spring show, painted jin-son choi nails with super-thick cherry red. At home, a red manicure finish (using a bright shade, like Marc Jacobs's Beauty Lola) with a thick glitter chest coat (try one of Formula X). Turning off a colorful French manicure in cobalt or orange is a cheerful way to lengthen your fingers. Use a ribbon brush from a craft shop to draw tips from a dark naked manicure. Draw lines. A blow of bright polish even the center of each nail is drawing, and better yet, easy. Use a stripbrush to paint the line on bare nails or polish light dark. You want the tape to feel like an exclamation point. Paint the rainbow. When you can't decide on one shade, go to them all. Keep the finish consistent by adding a glossy coat. (Try London Stardust butter.) Otherwise, you will look like you are testing colors in the nail salon. When real people try pinterest nail art: Stella McCartney prefers a clean look of beauty to her runway shows, regardless of the season. But when it comes to her clothes, the designer is certainly not afraid of bold style or interesting texture or unique wrap. Her fall 2016 collection was no different, as the designer experimented with puffy velvet coats, loads of lace, and a charming swan print that could only make you smile. All these details provide a wealth of inspiration to someone like Madeleine Poole, global color ambassador Sally Hansen and the brand's theordst brings on to display. After the final look comes down the runway, Paul manages to return to her hotel to dream up nail art designs inspired by the collection - and this season, she shared her art exclusively with Allure. When I'm behind the scenes, I start looking at the clothes on the shelf and thinking about what I want to do. There are usually things that stand out very strongly for me as something that would certainly work as a nail look. But Paul makes sure to stay even after finishing the models' nails. It is better to see clothes on people because sometimes there is a negative space that you will not notice when it is on a hanger. Sometimes it is a style that inspires you, and sometimes it is cutting, so it's best to have a comprehensive look at the way it appears on the runway. The details that popped up to Paul most from the McCartney fall 2016 collection were those wonderful swans that decorated everything from t-shirts to dresses. I couldn't resist it, and everyone behind the scenes kept commenting on it, says Paul, who found that printing reminds us of antique furnishings; I couldn't resist it, and everyone behind the scenes kept commenting on it. Paul admits that the swan paintings on your nails look like Feat (or one requires a degree in fine arts), but manicurist came up with a genius way to make this design user-friendly. By spreading the pattern on the fingers, it's more of an abstract, brush style rather than a complex detail. And here, my friends, is how I did it:Step 1: nail polish with two coats of midnight blue polish. Paul uses Sally Hansen's full salon manicure at Dark Huemoor.Step 2: use a striped brush and short, stroking movement to paint a light blue water reflection. Paul used hansen's ___Sally full salon manicure in full blue -m___ step 3: draw swan shapes in white polish using a ribbon brush. Paul loves Sally Hansen's complete salon manicure in Let's Snow.Step 4: To create a swan beak, apply ing a small triangle of semi-materialorange polishing, such as hansen's ___Sally full salon manicure in Cook-a-Mango. ___The final look: How to do Smoke Eye: This site is not available in your country and we may earn a commission of links on this page, but we only recommend products that we return. Why do you trust us? You can say a lot by these creative instincts. May 10, 2016 by Katya Cho. Are you the narrowest or free adventurer? The special requests you make in the salon reveal more about you than you think... 1 out of 11 adorable animals nothing quite gets you going like a video of adorable panda. No, wait, the wonderful little panda. But you are not just an animal lover, you are a compassionate person in general who must defend your family, friends and even strangers when necessary. Your home tends to drift towards the chaotic side, but that's just because you treasure your property and have a hard time getting rid of it. Speaking of conscience, you are always the first to cry at weddings and reunions. 2 out of 11 geometric edits you are only head to the mall if you have something specific to consider to buy, as you don't really like trying on clothes and finding browsing to be boring. Your home is very organized (maybe even coordinates colors) because you tend to avoid clutter in all shapes. Friends and family depend on you to be accurate and prepared, regardless of the occasion. 3 out of 11 sensitive flowers you prefer to live your life in the most positive way possible. You don't want to fling negative on the internet, or anywhere else for that matter. In fact, you prefer to use your time to create beautiful things, preferring to thumb through your favorite craft blog pages by scrolling through someone else's story. Your living space gets a little cluttered sometimes, but never dirty. 4 of 11 Pretty Polka Dots you are a fun-loving person who tends to see the best in people - even when they don't deserve it - and prefer strength during a difficult time rather than simply giving up everything together. You're a big fan of classic movies like The Beautiful Woman Breakfast at Tiffany's. Ferris Bueller is a day off, but you are always willing to try something new as long as a trusted friend recommends it. 5 of the 11 French tips flirty you are direct, and proud of it. When you go to grocery shopping, you know exactly what you want - don't wander aimlessly back and forth across the aisles for you. You have a tendency to be a little candid from time to time, but your loved ones really appreciate your honesty. When something rough happens to a close friend or family member, they always turn to you first. 6 of 11 flawless Umbri you want to stay a little mysterious - you're on friendly terms with your co-workers, but they probably don't know much about your personal life. On weekends, you prefer to get out of staying, whether it means heading to your local park or up to a trendy night spot in the city centre. If someone is to hand you $500 right now, you're spending on an experience with those you love rather than physical possession. 7 out of 11 Stry Stry Stripes you are a very organized person with a tendency to make menus. This does not mean that you will ever rush through a mission, however. You are a firm believer that if you want something to be done, you should do it correctly the first time. You wish you had more fine arts in your home, but it feels like it's not just practical to spend a lot on décor. 8 of 11 negative space check well, you are not adventurous! I had actually tried many Pinterest poetry tutorials and didn't get (too) discouraged when a few of them failed. Even with all your audacity, you still need to fit in some quiet time once in a while - and tend to feel a little stressed out when you don't get it. Your dream home will generally be minimal but with elegant and soft colors and plenty of space. 9 of 11 reverse French tips you're always more than an owl night from a morning person. Never keep things quiet, you like to try everything from your hobbies to your hair to the city you call your home. You are often tempted to take chances with your career - no risk, no reward is your motto - and there is nothing you like more than seeing a big step come to fruition. 10 of 11 Whimsical watercolors when you were a kid, and adults always say you had your head in the clouds, and they were right. You tend to get lost in daydreaming, even as an adult. Your perfect summer involves sitting on the beach with only two loved ones, a cold cocktail, and a good book. Pink lipstick is your absolute fave, which explains why you have so much 'em in your makeup bag at all times. 11 of 11 pin this drawing! Never forget your fave nail art - and what it means - with this scheme oh so beautiful. 3.
