Red dachshund long hair

Bombshell's hot. Sofia Vergara can shave her head and she's still seen smoking hot, but the low Bardot-inspired ponies she wears in the SAGs certainly don't hurt. All you need is a few volumizers, a seductive comb, and a hairspray to hold everything in place: Prepare wet hair with a volumization spray before blow-drying. Once dry, make an inch-long section starting from the hairline. (If you have a short layer that frames the face, you can let it loose like Vergara; otherwise you can pin it once you're done.) Take the hair in your crown and backcomb, puree the top layer down with a natural bristle brush, then collect your hair at the nape, securing it elastically. Very balanced. If you'd rather have a pretty, swinging pony than a statement-making tail, follow actresses Diane Lane and Julianna Margulies—at the SAGs and Golden Globes respectively. Both have tails that are not too high, not too low—secured right, at the back of the center of the head. The key to this look is that the sides of the hair, pulled straight back, are offset by the volume of the tail itself. Prepare strands with a thickening spray in advance, especially if you have fine hair. And add a little movement by curling the tail with an inch iron, breaking down the spiral with your fingers. Tall and mighty. I'm not a big fan of Sarah Michelle Gellar's dress at the Golden Globes, but I really dug up her high ponytail. By adding height at the root, she gives herself an instant facial enhancement. The placement of the pony is ideal — never take it straight to your crown, but just below, so it doesn't look silly. Be sure to straighten your hair with this type of ponytail as well—scrambling strands won't complement the severe silhouette. Avant Garde. I can't stop thinking about Nicole Richie's fauxnytail at the Golden Globes. The punk part, the '60s pin-up part, it's futuristic and sexy. It's not something that's easy to do on your own, but it goes to show that a ponytail can be a starting point for an edgy salon updo as well. Redhead makeup makeover: Just as we adjust our makeup to the color of our eyes, so can we adjust our makeup to the hue of our hair. While blonde locks tend to look good next to golden shades, and brunettes often look best when accompanied by copper-coloured metal, complementing red tresses is more difficult. To get skinny on the best makeup for red hair, we reached out to some makeup artists for their tips on how to complement red hair with makeup, as well as products they consider best for those with auburn tresses. According to Honey Artist Makeup Artist Suzy Gerstein, old dos and not like what can and can not be worn red hair should be thrown out the window. While she recommends opting for a peach-tinted moisturizer and bronzer to match the fairly toned skin that often accompanies those with red tresses, she also says that redheads can actually wear pink lipstick and that they should not be afraid to shake red lips as well. For makeup tips every redhead woman should know, keep reading. Yves Saint Laurent Touche Éclat Cushion Compact Foundation $48 Shop It's important not to wear too much makeup if you have fair red hair and skin, says Gerstein, because full face makeup can look amazing on pale-skinned women. To provide realistic-looking coverage that allows spots to shine, Honey Artists Makeup Artist Min Min Ma recommends wearing a compact foundation pillow like the one on top or a colored moisturizer like Jane Iredale Dream Tinted Moisturizer ($41). Kevyn Aucoin The Precision Liquid Liner $34 Shop Red hair and dark cat eyes are a must-try beauty look for redheaded women, said Kristine Cruz, a senior makeup artist at Antonio Prieto Salon. To get the look, Cruz recommends using a felt tip liner, like the one above, and adding a few swipes of mascara to the lashes. Bobbi Brown Bronzing Powder at golden light $42 Red hair shop is often accompanied by fair skin. If it happens to you, told me to choose your bronzer wisely. When choosing bronzer, she recommends staying away from gold tones, as they can muddy your skin. To avoid that muddy look, find bronzer with peach or pink color that will enhance and add light to the fair skin. Mac Work It Out at Extreme Dimension Lash Mascara at Sweaty Betty $20 Shop Dress You Up with brightly colored eyelashes. Ma recommends swapping your tried-and-true black mascara with a blue or burgundy hue to add contrast to your red tresses. Still want more colors? Honey Artist Makeup Artist Azra Red suggests adding a bright liner to the mix. Her favorite color for the redhead? This beautiful blue color, Chanel Stylo Yeux Waterproof Liner at Fervent Blue ($33). Glossier Generation G at Like $18 Shop Forget all the rules regarding what color redheads can and can't wear. When it comes to makeup, redheads can shake almost any lip color, Gerstein said. While she recommends fuchsia statement lips for women with red hair, cold red lipstick also works, as does being naked, as long as they have an orange tone to them saying Gerstein — you don't want to look washed. Next: The perfect skin trick that makeup artists always use. This post was originally published on a previous date and has since been updated. From ginger to strawberry blonde, we believe that anyone can find their perfect red color. Although this hair color is often vilified (never by us, we can add), it looks like this warm hue is finally getting a decent celebration, thanks in large part to many celebrity fans. You don't need to be the redhead born to join in the fun, because these days, coloring and dye services are so high tech that getting natural-looking hair has never been easier. So, if you're considering adding a russet tone to your strawberry blonde hair, thinking about turning your blonde strands into copper color, or fancy adding rich auburn washes to your brunette locks, we've compiled a comprehensive list of red hair looking for you to show your hairdresser. Choosing a Shade: Your skin tone and eye color should be the number one thing to consider, says celebrity colorist Joico Jill Buck. As a stylist I like to look into the color spots on my client's eyes as a good indicator for their natural tone. Maintenance Level: High. Red is complicated, says Nicole Tresch, senior dye at Rita Hazan in NYC. It is the first color that fades and needs to be maintained because its spirit is often with a luster. Walk Great With: According to Buck, a warmer and lighter bright Red compliments a person with fair skin and shades of red that are more neutral and deeper good for darker skin. Similar shades: Copper, mid-summer red, auburn, pumpkin spice, strawberry-blonde, cinnamon Price: The cost will vary depending on the technique your stylist will use. Very helpful to bring images during consultation and your stylist can quote you before the service starts, buck said. 01 of 50 David M. Benett/Getty Images There is real brightness on Florence Welch's red hair, which flatters the pink tones on her skin. If you want to try this style yourself, find a balm or serum that will add the definition of braids, braids, Moroccan Hydrating Styling Cream ($14). 02 of 50 Combination pieces and other colors to win. As if the shade of the merlot was not enough to drool, its textured mane was perfectly formed. 03 out of 50 Lily Cole is known for her natural red hair, and in recent years we have seen her experiments with different shades. We're very happy with the natural hue of Auburn. According to Tresch, red locks very good with freckled skin. 04 of 50 Natural and smooth colors of this auburn pair are perfect with a natural texture embraced. The beauty of nature. 05 out of 50 We love the way this color is blended beautifully into a more vibrant red-orange as it moves towards its edges. 06 of 50 Here you will find Zendaya sporting the red ombre of our dreams. Her wine-colored locks elegantly turned copper to the ends of her hair, creating a story of warm and rich colour. Ask your dye to keep the base richer/deeper than the tip, advises Buck. This will keep it looking natural and avoid what we refer to in the biz as 'hot roots.' 07 out of 50 This dark strawberry blonde looks so amazing on the classic dirty Blake Lively. To get the mega-watt shine, try the wrong one on Ouai Hair Oil ($28). 08 out of 50 Even with roots that look darker against this beautiful red color, touch seems unnecessary. 09 out of 50 Color gradients from auburn roots to ginger tips make the red color look naturally easy on hair expert Kristin Ess. 10 out of 50 We love the way this red transformation keeps the strands back on. If you experience damage or other damage from bleaching and overprocessing, consider adding a single color deposit like your favorite red color. 11 out of 50 FKA Twigs has always been a trendsetter, and the way she uses this bright red hue to frame her face has us, once again, noted. She keeps her raven roots except for a few strands forming her face, which is a beautiful rust color, matching the rest of her beautiful ombre. 12 of 50 Is this look inspired by its own name? Scarlett Johansson's unfussy up-do is an elegant red color (you guessed it). Using a permanent [dye] will give you the richest reds, but it comes with growing maintenance as well, Buck said. A permanent demi will give you a rich tone, but rise in 6-8 weeks. 13 out of 50 Your hair color is a form of expression, and sometimes we need to be the change we want to see. Hot red curls may just be a marker of the fire that is being brought in. Never underestimate the power of the story that can be told the color of your hair. 14 of 50 Kevork Djiansezian/Getty Images Your light little red hue? Take your inspiration from Joséphine de La Baume. If you try this look yourself, keep the curls intact with Joico JoiMist Firm Finishing Spray 09 ($17). This will get the job done, without the crisp stiffness. 15 15 50 Kpop star and actress Hani is known to experiment with different hair colors, but this is one of our absolute favorites. The long, smooth waves and blunt bangs look absolutely beautiful in this dark copper color. 16 out of 50 We love a good transformation. This blood orange red is a pleasant deposit color to add to the mature blonde. The lightening strands are the perfect canvas for bold and bright colors. Before you re-touch your roots on your bleach-and-tone, you may want to consider using lightening hair to your advantage. 17 out of 50 How beautiful are Keke Palmer's maroon braids? Whether she wears it or in a high ponytail, as depicted here, this glorious hue brings talent to one of her excellent looks. 18 of the 50 dark purple velvet roots melt into maroon? Yes please. 19 out of 50 As one of the biggest Hollywood stars with red hair, Jessica Chastain always looks really chic and polished. The slick-back look, tucked behind the ears provides an opportunity for her fair skin and strawberry strands to shine. 20 out of 50 While Rihanna has worn many different hairstyles and hair colors over the years, this bold Merlot hue is still sticking out in our minds. This color is so rich and intoxicating, and perfect for Rihanna's bouncy curls. 21 out of 50 Find color inspiration anywhere to find the most unique shades for your coloring to blend together. We like to think this one was inspired by the Jolly Rancher Watermelon. 22 of 50 Michael Tran/Getty Images Emma Stone has always been one of our favorite redheads, despite the fact that she's a natural blonde! This short hairstyle held back away from the face with an Alice in Wonderland-style headband complements the shape of her face, while the ginger colour brings out a natural flush on her cheeks. 23 out of 50 Dip-dyeing your curls at the end is a super chic color statement. It's also very convenient for the day you get more red and ready to switch to some other color — just go in for the trim and kiss them over goodbye. 24 out of 50 While Amy Adams is known for her long red locks, we love seeing them in sophisticated ponytails. The shade here is auburn's taut and very natural colour. 25 out of 50 If you want to try red for no more than a moment, consider using temporary colors or colored conditioners, such as the color conditioner: Ginger dye from oVertone's. 26 out of 50 Want true ginger color? So the hue processed by actress Christina Hendricks should be your guide. We loved her soft waves and bangs, and she proved that bright red hair runs with brighter red lipstick. 27 of 50 Fotonicas/Getty Images Game of Thrones actress Sophie Turner famously had fiery hair while playing Sansa Stark, so it's great to see her in a lighter hue. This gorgeous strawberry blonde paired well with her pale blue eyes. 28 out of 50 Amanda Stenberg is no stranger to pop pop the color on her hair, from seafoam blue to deep purple to shimmering silver. While we can go on and on, we want to highlight this stunning yellow color with architectural curls. 30 out of 50 It's not hyperbole to say that the golden, strawberry-blonde hair of Connie Britton is famous (seriously, Google it), so adding it to the list is a must. While mimicking the right mane may not be possible without genetics, we can share what products he uses to maintain it. 31 out of 50 Michelle Williams has been known for her chic pixie cut. We usually see her sport cut as platinum blonde, so it's nice to see her switch things to this apricot shade. She even dyed her eyebrows in the same warm hue—now it's a commitment! 32 out of 50 If you're ready to commit to a permanent red instead of a semi-permanent that will fade with each rinse, consider coloring your eyebrows as well to lock in a cohesive look that will last. 33 of 50 Karwai Tang/Getty Images Isla Fisher and redheads go together like Tina Fey and Amy Poehler at the Golden Globes - has there ever been a better couple? Although she has been sporting different colors for years, this dark ginger is one of our favorites. When paired with classic emerald-colored earrings, this look feels truly glamorous. 34 of 50 Jason Mendez/Getty Images One of the most iconic redheads around her, Julianne Moore's iconic style is deep auburn. Although it looks like one color at first glance, take a closer look you can see some subtle highlights. 35 of 50 John Shearer/Getty Images Supermodel Tyra Banks is best known for her brunette blonde hair and honey, but she's had a few red hairs. Here, he shakes the caramel base with auburn stripes. 36 out of 50 We like how expressive this red color is on its unraveled twists and turns. This is proof of how texture and movement can really bring your hair color to life. The 37 of the 50 soft burgundy Ombres have the perfect colour placement, allowing all the reds to flow down from her casually snatched ponytail with a dark natural base colour. 38 out of 50 She Dipasupil/Getty Images Claire Danes may have popularized burgundy hair in the 90s in My So-Called Life, but she has been all about the blonde these past few years. This strawberry bob is the closest he's come to re-forming. 39 out of 50 redheads of Riverdale resident Madelaine Petsch showed what we liked as cherry wood hair—the perfect balance between brunette and auburn. 40 out of 50 Riley Keough pulls whatever color she tries, but we're so obsessed this curly copper look. If you're going to do a brunette-to-red switch, be sure to invest in a color-saving shampoo. We loved rossano Ferretti Parma Splendido Color Maintenance Shampoo ($35). 41 out of 50 tips Prove Buck to be true, this deep red color looks beautiful against her olive skin. 42 of 50 Jason LaVeris/Getty Images Game of Thrones star Rose Leslie is for its rich red cinnamon color, pictured here in an elegant swoop 'do. 43 of 50 When it comes to braids, you have a lot of flexibility on how to wear your favorite red color. You can work in a super saturated pomegranate punch at the end, or you can weave in a variety of colors, all without doing any damage to your strands. 44 out of 50 After going through a major hair color transformation, the way you take care of your hair is very important. Be sure to use a heat shield before heating. Deep conditioning treatments will also help strengthen your strands if heat styling is part of your daily routine. 45 out of 50 Ditch your next round of highlights for some red lights instead. We love the way this subtle red color blends with her dark brunette texture. 46 out of 50 Transitions to red from a darker natural base color will not only provide additional warmth to your skin, but will also take a while to get there. Be curious and learn about how your coloring will approach the transition. Going with low developers and using bonders like Olaplex, are signs that your dye has the health and integrity of your hair at the forefront of their approach. 47 out of 50 For a darker natural base color, doing a quick round of highlights on the surface is a minimal commitment that will help you adjust to discoloration. 48 out of 50 Head of red hair rich against fair skin tone and sea green eyes are nothing short of a Little Mermaid dream come true. 49 out of 50 Even if you're a natural redhead, you might be tempted to deepen your color with something richer and less orange-y. Bryce Dallas Howard wears this berry-colored auburn beautifully. 50 out of 50 Getting your color and shape into a good place is really all your hair needs. Having these two things complement each other, like this fire-red-textured orange 'do, will always make you look and feel your best, and can keep your style efforts down to a minimum. Minimum.
