I want a search which I can use on all pages of the site. I made a global function like so: `$(body).on('keyup', '#my-search-box', function(e) { if (e.keyCode == 8) { $('#result').text('Not available'); return false; } else { var query = $(this).val(); var hidden_input = $('input[name="' + $('#my-search-box').attr('name') + '"']); hidden_input.attr('value', query); $('#result').text(query); });` It works fine. It makes the search active (working fine). The problem is, it only works on the first search-box. After that I can't type on it anymore. How can I make this code so it works on all search-boxes at all time? A: On your global search box, you would want to give it an ID so you can target it with `.on()`: `$(body).on('keyup', '#search-box', function(e) { var hidden_input = $('input[name="' + $('#search-box').` 520fdb1ae7
