Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an image processing apparatus and an image processing method. 2. Description of the Related Art In the case where a document image containing a copied image is printed out by an image forming apparatus using a plurality of photosensitive drums and a plurality of developing units, toner images formed on the plurality of photosensitive drums are sequentially transferred onto a transferring medium. After that, toner images transferred onto the transferring medium are transferred onto a paper sheet by means of a transfer device. The image forming apparatus, however, may be abnormally operated in the case where the image forming apparatus is continuously operated for a long period of time. In this case, the image forming apparatus cannot properly transfer the toner images to the transferring medium, so that the image quality of the copied image is deteriorated. In order to solve this problem, for example, the image forming apparatus is provided with a memory for storing a data of the number of the copying operations for every job. The data stored in the memory is read out when abnormality is detected. Then, when abnormality is detected again, a data stored in the memory is corrected by newly obtaining a data of the number of the copying operations for every job, and the data in the memory is written back. Thus, the data of the number of the copying operations for every job in the memory is always correct. Meanwhile, when an image forming apparatus is disposed in a small room, a user may continuously operate the apparatus for a long period of time. In this case, the user may manipulate an operation unit of the apparatus to set the number of the copying operations for every job to 520fdb1ac7
