Low Sunday

A busy Easter in the Centre

While the Church and Centre has been quiet over Holy Week and the school holidays, the Centre staff and contractors have been busy upgrading and redecorating areas which needed a bit of TLC.

The Lower Hall has brand new lighting and the ground floor toilets have had a re-paint and new splash boards fitted for the had dryers. Each toilet has a new flushing systems fitted.

Art at St Paul's

Next weekend St Paul's are opening the doors to one and all hosting Art at St Paul's. The exhibition showcases a stunning diversity of creativity from a range of cultures with over 200 artworks on display from 70 leading artists. This exhibition is free entry and will run on Saturday 18th April 09:00 - 21:00 and Sunday 19th April 15:00 - 21:00, with a private viewing on Friday 17th April.

St Paul's have a long traditional of working with local artists and are fortunate to have many in the congregation. The exhibition will feature a large display of artworks in the Church Hall, with artists from Cambridge and across the world, alongside a St Paul's Community Exhibition in the Lower Hall showcasing work from artists from our congregation.

Curated by fellow artist & historian Emily, the St Paul's Assistant Centre Manager, the exhibition has something for all tastes including abstract paintings, metal sculptures, colourful textiles, fine art, and remarkable three-dimensional pieces with artworks available for sale ranging from £10 to £4000.

Emily said: "This is a truly exciting moment for St Paul's, offering us a wonderful opportunity to celebrate creativity within our community. I am delighted by the number of submissions we received, and I'm especially proud that the diversity of artists and artworks in this exhibition so beautifully reflects the richness of our city."
