From Bulbapedia, a community encyclopedia of Pokemon. Rockruff (Japanese: ㇇㇇ Iwanko) is a rock-type Pokemon introduced in Generation VII. The shape in which it develops depends on the game in which it develops, and on the time in which it develops. Generation VII Generation VIII Rockruff turns into a midday form of Lycanroc when leveled in the day. Rockruff develops in the midnight Form Lycanroc when leveled at night. Rockruff with its own time is developing in the twilight form of Lycanroc when aligned with 7pm. M to 7:59 P.M in real time. The biology of Rockruff is a four-legged, Pokemon dog. It is primarily light brown with dark brown snout, paws, and ear tips. It has big blue eyes, button ears, a short snout with a triangular pink nose, and a short bundle of fur on each cheek. Around his neck ruff of gray-white fur, clouded with dark brown pebbles. Dark brown marks on the paws extend to a thin point on each wrist and ankle. It has a grayish-white tail that curls tightly over the back and is covered with fluffy fur. Rockruff has a great sense of smell and will never forget the smell after smelling it once. There are stories of him reuniting with his coach after being lost, following the slightest trace of the smell. He has lived with people since ancient times. Rockruff is often recommended as a good beginner because of its friendly nature. He can bond with coaches easily. However, Rockruff is considered a challenging Pokemon raise, to the point where some trainers abandon it because of being unable to handle it. This Pokemon is very sociable and will welcome others by rubbing them with rocks around their necks. As he ages, Rocruff becomes more wild and independent. As soon as it is close to development, it will start howing when the sun sets. It was said to leave his side coach and return as soon as it developed. Persistent Pokemon, it will keep going until it outlives enemies that are even more powerful. Rockruff intimidates opponents by using stones around his neck to hit the ground. As mentioned in the anime, Rockruff trains while running around. He attacks the enemies at the moment when they shudder. It is known that he fought with Growlithe for territory.
