Whether you're hosting a match or just hosting a casual gathering of any kind, it's always hard to answer the question: How do you keep a large group of people entertained and engaged? We could, of course, allow them to break down into smaller groups, where they can chat about what they want and people can move from debate to debate as they wish. There must be times for that. What if you want everyone to have fun together? Video games, TV shows and movies aren't exactly good for interacting with people. But the games on the board are perfect for it! Here are the best board games and fun games for larger groups — say 8 players or more — that are easily accessible to all types of people, gamers, and non-gamers that are included, and the host will beat you for Meeting. 1. Telestrations Max Players: N/A Telestrations is the ultimate party game, and it can only be the funniest game I have ever played. Each starts with a bunch of blank sheets and writes a guesswhite on the top sheet. Everyone simultaneously postpones their stack to the next player, who then uses the next sheet to draw the phrase. Everyone's out of the way again, but this time they're trying to guess what the drawing means. It happens in a circle until everyone gets their heap back, and then it's ROFL time, as every bunch's progress has shown. Note: The actual telestrations game only supports up to 8 players, but you can literally play it with a pile of paper and pens, so there really is no limit to how many you can play. Buy on Amazon 2. The concept of Max Players: N/A In Concept is a central board full of various abstract icons and images. It's the players' turn to get a word or concept that they can command — but the only way to do this is to place different color pegs and taps on the panel. It's hard, but it's a lot of fun. Note: The rules of the game include teams, but ignore all of this. The concept is much better when playing as individuals, with 2 points given by the one who cane it correctly and the 1 point to be given, whoever works the concept. Set the timeout for even more fun (1 minute for Easy concepts, 2 minutes for Medium and 3 minutes for Hard). Buy on Amazon 3. A Fake Artist Goes to New York Max players: N/A Everyone has got an object to draw, but one person is isoched and doesn't know what it is. One by one, players avoid adding lines to the drawing — but they don't want it to be too obvious! Outlaws try to fit in while everyone else tries to figure out who the outlaw is. A Fake Artist Goes to New York is extremely fun to play and guaranteed to draw a lot of laughs. Note: This is another game that can be played with paper and markers. The official game only supports up to 10 players, but you can play with as many people as you want using your own necessities. Buy on Amazon 4. Two Rooms and Boom Max Players: 30 Two Rooms and a Boom is literally played in two rooms. There is a president, a bomber and a bunch of other roles that are either on the president's team or in The Bomber Team - but everyone's identity is hidden. Each round moves from one room to another. If the president and the bomber are in the same room after the last round, the Bomber wins. If not, the president wins. Active and interactive! Great as an office game, too. Buy in Tuesday's Knight Games 5. Dead Last Max Players: 12 And Dead Last, each player is assigned color, as well as a deck of cards, one card per player color. Each round, players discuss who they want to kill, while also revealing which targets are attacking this round. If targeted, this player is for the round — but be careful, because players also have ambush cards that get caught by anyone who attacks! The last person standing in the circle gets some gold, and then on to the next round. Fun, fast and excellent, because it doesn't require too much attention. Buy on Amazon 6. Saboteur Max players: 10 In Saboteur, players excavate the mine by placing route maps in the grid layout in the hope of reaching the mine. But some excavators are saboteurs, and their goal is to prevent the good guys from getting on the track. The trick is that no one knows who's good and who's not! Saboteur is straight but exciting, and it's all the better if you implement some pet rule variants from BoardGameGeek forums. Plus, it's super cheap! Buy on Amazon 7. Incan Gold Max Players: 8 Incan Gold, also known as Diamond Outside the US, is a push-your-luck game where everyone ventures into the cave to find treasure. With each turn, more treasure is discovered — and dangers await around every corner. If a player leaves the cave early, he keeps whatever they find, but if they're still in the cave when disaster strikes, they lose everything. Who can leave with the most treasure after exploring a heap of caves? Great fun, especially when the cave collapses at all and you're the only one who's safely gone! Buy on Amazon 8. Spyfall 2 Max Players: 8 Spyfall is similar to The Fake Artist Goes to New York in that everyone but outlaws know what's going on, and outlaws need to figure out what everyone else knows, while everyone else has to figure out who the outlaw is. But instead of drawings, Spyfall gives everyone a location, and the answers are looking at each other's vague questions that address the location but don't give away. Creative, funny and full of twists! Buying on Amazon There is a similar game available on mobile devices that you can play for free.
