Prostanoid production in the guinea-pig gastric fundus. 1. The synthesis of prostaglandins from arachidonic acid by the guinea-pig gastric fundus was investigated in vitro. 2. Exogenous thrombin stimulated prostaglandin synthesis from endogenous arachidonic acid. 3. Indomethacin reduced basal and thrombin-stimulated prostaglandin synthesis by about 50% without affecting thrombin-stimulated prostacyclin synthesis. 4. When prostaglandin synthesis was studied in the presence of indomethacin and the cyclooxygenase inhibitor dazoxiben, thrombin stimulated synthesis of thromboxane A₂ by a prostaglandin E₂ and prostacyclin-sensitive process, with prostaglandin H₂ and prostaglandin F₂ alpha being produced in smaller amounts. 5. Prostaglandin synthesis was inhibited by eicosatetraenoic acid. 6. The major prostanoid synthesized was thromboxane A₂. The shift towards a globalised economy and increasing international investment in each region means that governments have to confront both the advantages and the threats that this brings. That’s why the International Strategy Forum of the Philippines’ 2013-2016 National Development Plan (NDP) has included the following focus areas: development of regional economic integration (REDI), particularly through the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership (RCEP), which seeks to create an economic area covering a population of around 1.6 billion people; strengthening regional connectivity and promoting tourism and economic development through a series of land and sea links (SILA); and increasing the resilience of the country’s economy, environment, and other natural assets by promoting eco-tourism, upgrading the quality of water 520fdb1ae7
