Perfume recipes with patchouli

Everyone loves good perfume. For a long time it was the perfect gift, provided that you can nail the fragrance that the recipient likes. But it is no secret that perfumes bought in stores, used chemicals in its composition. What's more, perfumes can be damn right expensive. But what if you knew how to make your own? Why make your own essential oil perfume? The real question is: Why not?. When you make your own perfume, you create a natural product made only with the best ingredients. But the benefits of mixing and matching these flavors don't just stop there: When you create your own flavor, you know exactly what ingredients you're using. This means that fewer compounds that you can't pronounce, and more ingredients that you know are useful. What's more, it gives you a chance of exactly the flavors you're most into. Although they smell good individually, they may not work well together. The perfume you make from essential oils will always be cheaper compared to the shop-bought alternative. If you think about the fact that perfume ingredients are absorbed by your skin and end up in your system, doesn't all natural essential oils idea sounds more appealing? Essential oils are good at helping with a lot of different conditions. For example, cedar wood really does great to evoke a sense of calm and reduce anxiety. Lavender acts as a sedative and helps people cope with emotional stress. Orange can lower blood pressure. Rose balances hormones. And patchouli can help boost the immune system. Vetiver Lemon Patchouli Roll-on Perfume Patchouli is an aromatic herb that has a very distinctive aroma: it is a combination of sweet and spicy, with a woody note. For a long time patchouli oil has been used in the cosmetic and perfume industry, because it is a great additive for fragrances. It is believed that it can help with depression signs, serves the insecticide, but also helps with dry or cracked skin. Essential oils and ingredients: 2 teaspoons Aura Cacia Jasmine Absolute (in jojoba oil) 0.5 fl. Oz. 2 drops of Cacia Vetiver aura 0.5 fl. Oz. 0.31 ounces Of Cacia Amber Roll-On Bottle with Writable Label .31 fl. Oz. 3 drops of lemon 2 drops patchouli 2 drops aura Cacia Jasmine Precious Basics 1 drop ilang-ylang III Directions : Instructions for making this roll on perfume so simple even a small child can do it. You will need an empty roll on the container and you will have to remove the ball fitment to put the ingredients inside. Carefully measure the specified amount for each because changing the ratio can lead to a completely different smell. Once all the ingredients are inside, use an eyedropper to fill the filling bottles of jojoba oil. After that, put the ball fitment and cover back on top of the bottle. Shake the bottle to make sure all the ingredients are well blended. Your new perfume roll is ready to use. To achieve optimal results, apply two or three napkins, and reapply each time you need to upgrade. Patchouli Butter Perfume Recipe Creating your own essential perfume oil is a cost effective method that will help you create a fragrance with all the flavors you love best in this world. The following recipe is based on a variety of different flavors that blend perfectly with each other, creating a sweet flavor. Unlike other recipes, this one uses vodka and distilled water in order to increase the quality of the perfume. Oils and ingredients: 50ml dark glass bottle (preferably spray bottle or roll-on) 2 tablespoons. Vodka 1 tablespoon distilled water 20 drops Sweet Orange 5 drops lavender 10 drops Patchouli 10 drops Of Cedar Tree 5 drops ilang-ylang 5 drops Bergamot Directions: The first step in making this patchouli-based perfume is to combine distilled water and vodka into a bottle. Then you will have to add one drop of essential oil at a time and mix thoroughly. It is true that this perfume recipe implies quite a lot of stirring, but this is how every good perfume is made. The point of this idea is to give each drop of essential oil time to disperse in the mixture. zen Out with Patchouli Essential Oil Perfume Whenever you create essential oil perfume, it is important to choose a carrier or solution that combines the whole mixture together. A previous example demonstrated a recipe that was based on a mixture of vodka and distilled water, while the one below requires an oil carrier. This recipe offers sweet almond butter, but you have other options perhaps more suitable for your own taste, such as coconut or jojoba oil. Oils and Ingredients: Directions: This is another easy-to-use essential oil perfume recipe. This involves combining the recommended amount of each essential oil mentioned in the ingredients section and then adding carrier oil (something like sweet almonds). Once the ingredients are stirred together, you can add them to an empty perfume bottle. Easy DIY Patchouli Perfume Blend Using essential oils of course, you always have the option of creating essential oil perfumes that don't use any other dilution. This creates a more powerful fragrance that is recommended for those who love a really strong fragrance (not everyone is a fan of perfumes that can be picked up from afar). It is also important to keep in mind that recipes like the following may not be the best option for people with very Skin. Oils and ingredients: 17 drops patchouli 15 drops lavender 10 drops Orange Directions: Whenever you create a mixture based on essential oils, be sure to use a glass glass to store the mixture. For this recipe, you can mix the essential oil directly into the bottle. If you feel that the flavor is too strong or too annoying, you can add the oil carrier until you fill the rest of the 15 ml glass bottle. Orange Patchouli Solid Perfume's next recipe is different from the others, in terms of ingredients and final texture. It uses coconut as a carrier oil, but also beeswax, which alters the consistency of the final product. This type of perfume is more solid, so you will have to use your finger to apply it to the skin. Oils and ingredients: 1 tablespoon beeswax 1 tbsp fractional coconut oil 20 drops Of Patchouli essential oil (Pogostemon cabin) 15 drops of orange essential oil (Citrus sinensis) 2 small cans/containers Directions: First step for this recipe if melted by beeswax in bain-marie (heated bath), placing in a bowl. It will slowly melt the wax. When the beeswax melts, mix it with fractional coconut oil and keep stirring until the two are mixed together. After that, add the essential oils to the mixture, and keep mixing until the composition is homogeneous. When all the ingredients are mixed together, pour the perfume inside the containers and leave the mixture to cool. Bee wax will create perfumes with a pretty sticky and creamy texture, so you can run your finger over it and then rub on your neck or wrist. DIY Patchouli Perfume Recipe Don't be put off by the amount of essential oils used in the following recipe. All the best perfume companies in the world create blends that have top, medium and basic notes. The top notes are the first scents that stand out when you smell perfume, but they are also the fastest to disappear. The average notes are the ones that you can smell after the top notes evaporate. The basic notes are combined with medium notes to create rich notes that will stick to your skin for hours. Oils and ingredients: 2 tablespoons vodka 1 tablespoon distilled water 1 dark glass bottle 20 drops sweet orange oil 10 drops patchouli oil 10 drops of cedar oil 5 drops lavender oil 5 drops oil ylang 5 drops bergamot oil Directions: First, you will have to combine distilled water and alcohol into a dark glass bottle. Then, add the essential oils to the mixture, one drop at a time, and mix thoroughly (yes, just as we mentioned a few recipes back). When you are done mixing in all drops of essential oil, you should leave the recipe to rest for a few days. And always make sure to shake the bottle before applying the perfume. Flower garden Patchouli essential oil is a great base of note for perfumes. It has a musky aroma and goes well together mint and wooded aroma. It also offers a very exotic type of perfume, mixing large with ylang ylang or a sandalwood. The recipe below is called The Flower Garden for a reason: all essential oils are used on the basis of flowers, except for sweet orange and cedar wood, which is another wooded aroma that goes well with patchouli. Oils and ingredients: 7 drops of sweet orange 4 drops patchouli 4 drops of cedar wood 2 drops of lavender 2 drops of ylang-ilanga 1 drop of bergamot 3 tablespoons of carrier oil (about 50 ml.) 1 roll on the perfume container (about 50 ml capacity) Directions: This recipe is also simple and quick to make. Simply pour the essential oils into the perfume container and then add the carrier oil until the bottle is filled. Put the lid on the bottle and seal it. Shake the container well, giving the ingredients a chance to mix. To get the best out of your fragrance, leave the perfume to sit for two days before using it. Earthy Because patchouli is known to be an earthy smell, it is safe to assume that it blends perfectly with other similar flavors like those of cedar wood and a vetivora. You might think that the resulting fragrance is only suitable for men, but there are many women who just love that musky smell. Oils and ingredients: 3 drops of patchouli 3 drops palmarosa 1 drop vetiver 4-5 drops of cedar tree 1 drop neroli Directions: You can choose to mix all the ingredients together in a bottle without carrier oil. However, if you want a more diluted odor, opt for carrier oils that have virtually no flavors. The most common of these are grape, jojoba, and sweet almond oil. Make sure you use a roll bottle for pure use. Chypre Recipe with Patchouli Chypre is a name given to a certain concept of perfume that is based on citrus notes (such as bergamot), medium notes like labdanum, and a basic note of patchouli. Some believe that this concept dates back to the 18th century, and was named after the French name attributed to the island of Cyprus. Oils and Ingredients: 10 drops Labdanum 20 drops Oakmoss Absolute 20 drops Patchouli 50 drops Bergamot directions: Just mix all the ingredients in a clean bottle container, and apply the droplets of the mixture to pulse points when necessary. If you feel that the aroma may be too strong, you can always dilute the mixture with a cup of water or an oil carrier. Back to nature with Patchouli Essential Oil Perfume Recipe below mixed a lot of different essential oils that go well together, and create a fragrance that is very refreshing and nature-like. The top notes for this recipe include basil and lemon. Medium notes of black pepper, combined with ginger and pine. The base notes that the lingering are patchouli and sage clari. Oils and ingredients: 10 drops basil 12 drops lemon 10 drops cypress 5 drops black 10 drops ginger 15 drops pine 10 drops clari clari 15 drops of patchouli 5 ounces of carrier oil such as sweet almond directions: Mix all the essential oils together. Add the oil carrier on top of the mixture and then ensure the container is closed. Shake the container to make sure the ingredients are the mixture. For the optimal method of use, choose a bottle of perfume spray. Patchouli-Tangerine Solid Perfume Solid Perfume Solid Perfume implies a more complex recipe, in the sense that you have more steps to follow to do so. It uses only three ingredients: carrier oil, beeswax and essential oils of your choice. Jojoba oil is usually the most common oil carrier selected for such recipes, but you can go with coconut oil if it will be a flavor you will find more appealing. Oils and ingredients: 1 tablespoon jojoba 20 drops Patchouli 40 drops Mandarin 2 teaspoons beeswax pastille Directions: Use a small shot of glass to measure the amount of jojoba oil to be used in this recipe. Add the essential oils on top of the carrier and mix the mixture. With this, feel free to check the flavor on the skin patch, and determine if you need more oils. Using a small kitchen scale, weigh the beeswax (alternatively, you can also use carnauba max). Melt the beeswax inside a bowl or glass container placed in a pot of boiling water. When the beeswax has melted, pour the previously created oil mixture on it. Once this is done, pour the mixture into a clean container. If you allow it to cool for 15 minutes, you will notice how the mixture becomes firm. Home Perfume Wise people once said that the things you put on your skin end up in your body, so you have to be very careful with what you choose. Based on this principle, creating natural perfumes that are based on essential oils with proven benefits seems the way to go. Take, for example, the recipe below. It is a mixture of some of the best essential oils to which you add water, giving the mixture a refreshing texture. Oils and ingredients: 12 drops of sandalwood 12 drops Rosewood 12 drops Gerani 12 drops cloves 12 drops Lavender 12 drops Palmarosa 12 drops Patchouli water dilute directions: Since this recipe uses water to dilute the oils, it is best if you choose to spray the bottle to serve as a container for your mixture. Just place each of the oils inside the bottle and then top them up with a cup of water. Shake the container and you are ready to start applying the perfume as needed. Pure Pulse Point perfumes Sometimes, you don't want to create an entire perfume bottle that the sky knows when you Finish. Sometimes, you just want to whip up a quick fragrance that will help you throughout the day. And, boy, we have a fine fine For you. The idea of recipes like this is very simple: just add the drops directly to the pulse point, or mix them in a cup with the oil carrier. Oils and Ingredients: 1 drop patchouli 1 drop of rosewood 1 drop of lemongrass Directions: If you want to apply essential oils directly to pulse points, you should patch the test first to make sure you won't suffer from skin irritation. Otherwise, just take a clean cup, pour three drops of essential oil inside, then add a few drops of carrier oil to dilute the mixture. Robust Manly Blend Is a general tip when venturing towards creating your own essential oils to start with a maximum of three ingredients. This will train you in a better understanding of what some good blends are, and what flavors can be paired with others. The recipe below certainly has more than three ingredients, but it is also created by someone who has experimented with the essential oil mixture more than once. You will find the combination to be quite masculine and powerful. Oils and ingredients: 6 drops bergamot 6 drops patchouli 3 drops bay 3 drops vetiver 1 drop of ginger 1 drop of neroli 3 tablespoons carrier oil (about 50 ml.) 1 roll on the perfume container (about 50 ml capacity) Directions: Put the essential oil in a clean container of perfume, then add the oil carrier to fill the container to the top. Make sure the bottle is sealed, shake the container until you see that all the ingredients are mixed with each other. Leave the perfume to sit for a few days for better synthesis of ingredients.
