It stars Supriyo Dutta, Swastika Mukherjee, Indrani Haldar, Smita Singh, Shrivas Goswami, Joy Chakravarty and Om Puri in pivotal roles. Written by Srijit Mukherji, the film marks the directorial debut of his wife Swastika Mukherjee. After directing several award-winning documentaries, it is Srijit's first full-length feature film. Srijit, who is known for his strong scripts, films his women-centric film as Rajkahini with strong women characters. The film was produced by Shiladitya Rajkotia under the banner of Shiladitya Rajkotia productions. The music is composed by A. R. Rahman. The movie features both conventional and unconventional elements in the form of songs and dances. The film was released on 22 December 2009 in India with high expectations from the film fraternity and mass audience. Critics were highly impressed with the film with many giving it good reviews. The film was declared an Average grosser by Box Office India. The film marked the comeback of Smita Singh after her two-year hiatus from the acting circuit. After a hit-film opposite actor Abhishek Bachchan, her character in the film gives a strong performance and is one of the best in the film. Rajkahini is the story of a Bihari couple (Supriyo Dutta and Swastika Mukherjee) who migrate to a remote small town (name of that town not yet mentioned in the film) in the state of West Bengal and start living with their son and daughter-in-law. The story is set in Bengal, India, where Tamilian people are settled. The main characters in the film are Tamilians. The film was made as a tribute to the artist Kavi Pradeep and his movie "Mangal," whose title character, Pradeep's character in the film, is a Bihari with a wife and son. The movie is a bilingual (Bengali and Hindi). It is the third in the series of Srijit Mukherjee directed films after Rajkahini (2009) and Kolkata (2012). Kolkata is the second part of the series of films set in the Indian city of Kolkata. Rajkahini is the first in the series. The 520fdb1ae7
