This was taken about 10 years ago when I was still living with my parents. I remember that year very well because it was the year before I left home. This was taken during a family meeting. My Uncle Andy took the picture while I was looking. I didn't know it was taken until he sent it to me a few months later. It's very typical of him. It's pretty impulsive and full of surprises. The family's moment when the photo was taken was in the summer. It was one of the hottest years I remember and the temperature rose to a scorching 35 degrees. Nearly 40 people turned up and stayed over the weekend. We enjoyed endless food like seafood, salads, pies, meat and lots of desserts, different kinds of drinks and lots of dancing that were all organized for my mother. It's not often that my family all meet together, so it was a really special weekend. When the photo was taken, I was talking to my grandfather and we were laughing and enjoying each other's company. That was the last time I saw him. He died that same summer. This conversation has stayed with me and will stay with me for the rest of my life. He told me to reach the stars and never hold back, follow my dreams and not worry about the results. He was an inspirational man, and I know he died without a single regret. If I could talk to him again, I would tell him how much his advice has helped me throughout my life. I'm grabbing this picture on the bedside table. Whenever I look at it, it brings me a sense of calm and hope. For me, it symbolizes everything that is possible in life, as well as the importance of having a loving, supportive family.
