Robert Redford, Julia Roberts, Benedict Cumberbatch, Orlando Bloom and Ben Stiller share their favorite wild settings on December 31, 2013 On his journey to Mitty artist Jeff Koons talking about Versailles. It's a very controlled nature but beautifully controlled, he said. My wife and I also love going to Iceland. We even brought home some of the natural landscapes, we brought their horses back to our farm in Pennsylvania, seen here with his wife, Justin Wheeler. Also on the Mitty show, actor Richard Kind gave a nod to Bellingham, Washington. I tell you, said The Good, This is the most beautiful place! On the debut of the Film Society The Secret Life of Walter Mitty Ben Stiller, who starred and starred in the film, extolled the natural beauty of Iceland, where he shot a number of attractive scenes. Iceland is incredible, he said. It's one of the most beautiful places I've ever been. And the landscapes are so diverse - glaciers, black sandy beaches, green, tree-free mountain. It's very cinematic. Kristen Wiig, the stiller's co-star, also mentioned Iceland. I'd like to go back,' she said. One night we went to the water draw. I really don't know if it was technically open and we got stuck because there wasn't a lot of water. Julia Roberts gave an Oscar-nominated performance in August: Osage County, filmed among the Oklahoma prairie. But in real life, she prefers New Mexico, where she escapes to an idyllic ranch in Taos County. Any kind of natural landscape in New Mexico, she touted the red carpet at the film's premiere. It's all so beautiful, it's really amazing -- it's all, almost always. Robert Redford, star of All Is Lost, is almost as well known for his conservation efforts as he is for his actions. At the Film Critics Circle Awards, he said, Let's start with the ocean. The ocean is the most unexplored part of our planet. And there's a lot of danger about that. If we don't start paying attention to the dangers of what's left of our planet, we won't have it. On his debut film, The Hobbit: The Desolation of Smaug, Orlando Bloom, who played the elf Legolas in the film, as well as in the TV series The Lord of the Rings, recalled the original landscapes where both were shot. The countryside in Wellington, N.Y., has a really special place in my heart, he said. I am also English, and the countryside in Kent evokes many memories and happy thoughts. Pictured: A rural area in New Zealand. At The Hobbit writer Jill Kargman, who grew up in Manhattan, insisted she preferred indoor living. Meanwhile, her husband, business guru Harry Kargman, noted that he was struck by the Galapagos Islands. I saw an eagle beam with a ten-foot wingspan, he said. Thirty feet below us was a whole school of sharks. We also climbed from the bottom of this volcanic island and there were these huge earth turtles. They must have weighed 500 pounds. Actor Patrick Wilson, also in The Hobbit, noted that he had visited New York. NSW is one of those places where you feel the earth is still running - from little ferns to mud pools, to Rotorua, where the whole city smells of sulfur because the earth is kind of erupting. Fashion designer Chris Benz, visiting The Hobbit, recalled growing up in the Pacific Northwest. At the time, I didn't appreciate it because he was home. But now that I'm back, it's the most beautiful place. I'm from Bainbridge Island. It's the same size as Manhattan, but it's covered in evergreen trees. And everyone rides on water and horseback riding. On the red carpet at the Emmy Awards, Girls star zosia Mamet described a more bucolic landscape. My family has a home in Vermont,' she said. It's very picturesque. I read a lot of books, ride horses, and look at the scenery there. Walking the red carpet at the premiere of her film The Way, The Way Back, Allison Janney extolled the neighborhood in Maine. My family has a home in Edgecombe, Boothbay Harbour, she said. It's very beautiful! The hatfields and McCoys miniseries was filmed not in West Virginia, where the events took place, but in Romania. Debra is nothing like them in the world, said actress Jena Malone during a party for actors at Soho House in Los Angeles. I took two weeks and drove a rented car with my boyfriend. There were women in horse-drawn carriages and traditional clothes. I highly recommend it. Brashov is really beautiful. Malone can be seen here at The Hunger Games: Catch the Fire premiere. Also pictured in Brashov, Romania. During a BAFTA tea party at the Four Seasons Hotel in Los Angeles, Benedict Cumberbatch, who played his part in August: Osage County masterfully, proposed countryside in his native UK. I love Britain in the autumn, he said. His favorite things about it? Warm pub and smell of wood smoke when you go home at dusk. I loved the open spaces outside Dublin that I got to see, rocker Pete Wentz flipped before taking the stage at Ball Jingle No 100. Wentz seen here at the Wreck-It Ralph premiere. Actress Rose Byrne, at the DKNY charity auction, noticed that she had visited Raincliffe in upstate New York. It was a really gorgeous area of the country, she suggested. We rented a lovely house with friends. Musician David Crosby, who attended the Hugo Boss event, said he shared his favorite views with pals on his boat. Normally when I get done the job, I pull out the old wooden schooner I have and swim in the ocean near Santa Barbara, he said. But I have Worldwide. Mostly with friends. Crosby seen here with his wife, Ian Dance. What a big question, answered actor Alan Arkin at the Siegfried Theatre at the premiere of his film Grudge Match. Is it a great answer? (Hawaii) On the Pali Coast, Margari Harbor in Nova Scotia on the island of Cape Breton, the mountain in Telluride, and on Sugarloaf in Rio, Brazil. Pictured here at Na Pali Coast on Hawaii. Also by Hugo Boss ft, actress Blythe Danner approved a walk on the ocean on the East Coast in the fall. There is a certain light, she said, that I don't think any other time. Danner seen here at the Film Society's Lincoln Center gala. Comedian Kevin Hart, also at Grudge Match, noted that he and his girlfriend visited Fiji. I started surfing, Hart told AD. Fiji is not only stunningly beautiful, but also impressed with the culture and people. On the debut of Anchorman 2: Legend Continues, producer Judd Apatow championed the big island of Hawaii. I like Cohn. We go there on holiday, he said. And I also like West Covina (a small town east of Los Angeles). Apatow is seen here at the Emmy Awards. Also pictured is the coastline in Cohn, Hawaii. Actor Fred Willard, on Anchorman 2, praised the scenery in Northern California, near Carmel. We drive up to walk through the woods and look at the ocean. Today's Hoda Kotb, also on the debut of Anchorman 2, told AD that the Maldives was the most beautiful place she had ever been. More than in the Caribbean, she said. I've never been on that blue water. Kotb can be seen here at Glamour's Women of the Year Awards. Actress Jackie Weaver, at the Australian Academy of Film and Television Arts event in Los Angeles, gave a nod to her homeland. I love a beach called Tamarama,' she said. It's around the corner from Bondi, which you've probably heard of, but, oh, so beautiful. Actor Bruce Dern-his hair is just as amazingly fluffy and messy at the National Board of Review Awards as it was in Nebraska-noticed how beautifully he found the state. I've been through this a few times, Dern said. One of the big fights that Alexander Payne had was about making a film in black and white. And Nebraska is kind of black and white, but there's also something out there you won't find many other places and that sense of fairness. People are fair and they are honest. And they don't leave. Nebraska star Will Forte spoke about the state's namesake film at the National Board of Review Awards. I found it very beautiful,' he said. The time of year we were there, I believe there were corn guarantors in the fields. The light would hit them and cast these deep shadows. I expected it to be more like Freeway number five from L.A. to San with this kind of monotonous fields, but there was much more to it. Also at the National Review Board Awards, Gravity producer David Heyman praised the nature reserve in Ipioka, Brazil, that he visited while on vacation. There is a hotel there which is in the style of a Portuguese colonial farm and you see pockets of rainforest. Another look that impresses him? When you look from space, Heyman marveled, there are no boundaries - it's just one beautiful landscape. On his way to the National Review Board Awards in Cipriani, Wolf of Wall Street star Jonah Hill expressed the view that his favorite place is in Nature Down Under. If I ever have time, I like Bondi Beach in Australia, he said. It's the most beautiful place I've ever been. Aerial vistas show how a winged floor plan creates spaces that can become courtyards and gardens. The design aims to maximize all possible views of the compelling landscape while maintaining a low-key presence in an extensive, open environment, said Jimenez. Carlos Jimenez was hired in 2005 to design a 4,000-square-foot retreat for a rural Texas couple precinct about 40 miles outside San Antonio. It remains undeveloped.
