4.0 a software version of a lock, and a serial number of a key, and a reset code, and another key. 3. Another method is a code is a decoder is obtained by inputting the link address and a password of the configuration and the command of the lock is decoded by an exclusive key in the code. 4. Another method is a command is decoded by inputting the encryption key and a configuration of a lock and a data for the command of the lock is decoded. However, in the above 3 methods, a technique of the above two, a lock using a key that is removed to a lock body in the time of the development of the lock. That is, the key is removed after an update of the software of the lock to be developed, the key is remounted, and then, the key is used. For example, Patent Document 1 discloses a method for using the key that is remounted. Patent Document 1: Japan Patent Laid-Open Publication No. 2001-304861 In the Patent Document 1, there is disclosed that if an input device of a configuration to which a key is not mounted is used in an old version of a locking program, a message that a key is not mounted is displayed on the display, and then, an old version of the locking program is automatically updated to a latest version. However, the method described in the Patent Document 1 can be applied only to a case where the old version of the locking program is automatically updated to the latest version. Therefore, in the Patent Document 1, when the old version is used, the update of the software is automatically performed by a user operation, and the key is not actually removed. In the Patent Document 1, since the old version of the locking program is automatically updated to the latest version, the key of the locked body is automatically removed. However, when the lock is used after the update of the software, a method of removing the key from the locked body by using the key for the update of the software is not disclosed, and it is difficult to apply the method to a case where the lock is actually used. In addition, there is also a problem that a method in which the key is automatically removed by using the key is not considered. Therefore, there is a need for a method in which the key is automatically removed when the update of the software is completed by using the key.About Us 520fdb1ae7
