Apk chrome extension

Photo: Thaspol Sangsee (Shutterstock)If you're a Facebook fan but hate its recent redesign, there's hope. You can no longer return to Old Facebook by simply clicking a button in your settings menu, but you can install a Chrome extension that magically transforms the site, restoring the look and feel you enjoyed earlier. To get started, go to visit the old design with the appropriate name and install the extension in your browser. And, yes, the same person who made this extension made the Social Fixer extension always useful that helps you select your News Feed to drown out content you don't want to see. Matt Kruse, you're on a roll. Once you've installed the extension, Facebook should automatically return to its classic look the next time you activate the site. There is nothing you have to configure to get this lovely look back:Screenshot: David MurphyAs for how it works, I was surprised to find that the hack is really quite simple. No, the extension isn't using a lot of HTML and CSS magic to change everything Facebook updated back to an older look. Actually, as Kruse writes: Trick Facebook into handing over the old design by making your browser pretend to be an older version that its new design isn't supported, so if you're seeing any strange messages about updating your browser while navigating through your friends' boring quarantine lives, ignore them. Your browser is fine; you're making Facebook think you're using something you're not. There's no guarantee that this little trick will work forever, so enjoy Old Facebook while you can. And, yes, you can combine this extension with Social Fixer to keep it looking older and select a theme-free feed you hate. That includes all of Facebook's annoying sponsored content, which consumes valuable real estate on the site and diminishes your ability to enjoy seeing what your friends are doing. If this is too much, however, I guess you could also use the handy Social Book Post Manager extension to slowly delete your content on Facebook before deleting Facebook. That seems like an exaggeration to Facebook's new design, which even my site doesn't love, but it's important to consider all your options, I guess. One of the best things about Google Chrome is the ability to expand its capabilities by adding a variety of extensions to help improve functionality, usability, privacy and productivity. Here's how to install and manage Google Chrome extensions. How to install Chrome extensions Download official Chrome extensions from Chrome Web Store from fonts you know or trust. You need to make sure it's before installing it doing some due diligence and reviewing the developer's website, if they have one, ratings, and even unsnatching through the source code if it's so tilted. Inclined. How to make sure a Chrome extension is safe before installing it Go to the Chrome Web Store for extensions and use the search bar or browse by category to find the right extension for you. If you're not sure where to start, Google does a good job of curating the store and recommending extensions on the first page. After finding an extension, you want to add, click the icon that will be redirected to your page. RELATED: The best Chrome extensions to improve Gmail Once you're on the extension page, click Add to Chrome to add the extension to your browser. A window will appear asking you with the necessary permissions for the extension. Read the permissions carefully and decide if you want to access this extension, and then click Add Extension. After the extension finishes installing, an icon is usually added to your Chrome browser in the upper-right corner, next to the settings icon. As you install more extensions, this area may start to clutter. Fortunately, you can right-click the extension icon and select Hide from the Chrome menu to move it to the menu and outside the Chrome toolbar. How to manage Chrome extensions To open the extensions page, click the menu icon (three dots) at the top right of Chrome, point to More Tools, and click Extensions. You can also chrome://extensions/ in the Chrome Omnibox and press Enter. Scroll through the extensions to find the one you want to manage and click the Details button to open their settings. Otherwise, if you know which extension you want to change (and it's already docked in your browser), you can right-click the extension icon on the Chrome shelf, and then click Manage Extensions to avoid going to the main extensions landing page. In the settings window, you can turn the extension on or off, allow it in incognito mode (most applications are disabled by default), access an extension's options, open the extension's website, and allow access to the site. RELATED: Controlling access to a Chrome extension's permissions site allows an extension to have permissions for certain sites to access site data. This is a recent update that allows people to take a more detailed approach to the type of data that an extension can read and change. You can choose from three options: when you click the extension, on a specific website, or on all websites. That's all there is to it. If you want to uninstall extensions that you no longer need, to misbehave, or were accidentally installed, go to chrome://extensions/, click Remove, and then click Delete again in the pop-up confirmation window. Similarly, you can right-click the extension in the Chrome menu and choose Remove from Chrome. We've collected 100 awesome and useful Google Chrome extensions in this east it's easy to digest because they're all categorized! By adjusting Google Chrome, you can make your browser much more productive and interesting. Enjoy! Business Tools1. Gmail OfflineGmail Offline is one of the most useful tools I have downloaded. Many times emails come faster than I can respond to them, but disconnecting from the Internet while responding to what is currently in my inbox can be helpful. Also, when not connected, it will use less battery power.2. Google CalendarGoogle Calendar is an application that gives you quick access to your Google Calendar. Apart from the direct link to your main calendar, there is also the option to view and manage your calendar offline. This is very useful for the same reasons as the previous Gmail offline app.3. Smart Inbox for GmailSmart Inbox for Gmail is a great extension for your Google Chrome browser. You'll be able to see your contacts' social accounts, which is a great way to better understand customers and/or keep up with your family and friends, all from your Gmail inbox.4. Google Tasks (by Google)If you didn't know, Google has a Tasks app and is already part of Gmail and Google Calendar. While it is quite barefoot, it can still be useful. Using the Google Tasks extension (by Google) will make Google tasks more accessible and therefore more effective.5. Always Clear DownloadsAlways Clear Downloads is a Google Chrome extension made to solve the problem of that ugly download bar that appears at the bottom of the Chrome browser window after downloading any type of file. This will save you the task of clicking the Close X button every time you download something.6. Grammarly LiteGrammarly Lite is a great spell checker for your browser window. It's different from most others because it will check your grammar as well as spelling. If you don't like people who incorrectly place the wrong type of word on the wrong part of a sentence, Grammarly will help you avoid becoming one of them.7. KeyRocket for GmailKeyRocket for Gmail is a somewhat educational tool: while using Gmail, KeyRocket helps you learn keyboard shortcuts. Knowing what an email will archive versus removing it will help you get through your inbox much faster, and the faster you get through all your emails, the more likely you are to keep your number of messages low, maybe even zero.8. PanicButtonPanicButton allows you to hide all your windows and tabs at once and opens a predefined window, some people refer to this as a boss button. You can even password protect button so they can't restore the tabs without it. If the button is too obvious, you can use a keyboard shortcut instead.9. Stunning New Tab PageThe awesome new tab page is a great way to create a useful homepage for your Google Chrome browser: when you create a new page or tab, this window will open. Open. are a lot of default tiles to add as well as other extensions to install, adding to the coolness of the new page.10 tab. Powerbot for Gmail links your two most used apps, Gmail and Evernote, for a big productivity party. What's really cool here is not having to switch between two apps just to create a new note. Everything can be added to the note as if you were in Evernote; even email attachments. Search Tools11. Search by Image (by Google)Search by Image (by Google) is a small bright extension that allows you to search the web using an image instead of words like the search term. This is useful if you are looking for the original version of an image, or even a modified version of it. You can right-click an image on a web page, and then search Google for similar images.12 Google Analytics opt-out add-onWhen you browse the web, it's hard to run into a site that doesn't use Google Analytics. These sites are tracking what you're doing: when you're clicking on the site, Google Analytics is seeing what you're doing, but Google Analytics Opt-out Add-on helps you avoid being crawled.13 Highlight to searchWhen you're on the web a lot, you're sure you'll come up with something you want to look for more information about, and Highlight to Search makes this easier. Simply highlight the words you want to search for and click the magnifying glass for a new tab with a search on it.14 Google Quick ScrollGoogle Quick Scroll is another great way to make your searches faster. Clicking a link in the search results takes you directly to the place on the page where the search term is mentioned, preventing you from scanning the page while searching for the information you want.15. Focused GoogleCentered Google results is a must for users with large monitors. Normally Google search results are turned off on the left side, but this Google Chrome extension is a simple solution for placing search results in the center of the screen.16. Google 360Google Search used to have a feature called Wonder Wheel in its search options to help you find similar search terms. This was great for people like bloggers or Internet sellers, and Google Search 360 looks a lot like Wonder Wheel. Add a search term and see similar terms, or continue to reduce the terms for more niche results.17. Personal Blocklist (by Google) is a pretty cool extension that allows you to block certain URLs from your searches. This is very useful if you doing a lot of search and want to remove certain sites like Wikipedia from your search.18. Talking to SearchSpeak to Search lets you use your voice to google.
