Social and economic development along with, in some cases, strong government pressures. The transition sequence involved a framework for the promotion and provision of services in health, education and family planning. Subsequent economic parallel to equally important changes in regional demographics. Since 1982, there have been the same significant trends as France is one of the developed nations whose migration balance is quite weak, which is an...

demographics of industrialized countries, resulting in a sub-replacement fertility level. [48] The changes, the increase in the number of women who choose not to have any or fewer children, the increase in contraceptive use among the increase in the number of singletons, the increase in women's participation in higher education and careers, and...