The most important features of the park are Locust Mountain and Lake Tuscarora. The park was named after the Tuscarora Indians who lived in the area after the Battle of Tuscarora in North Carolina until they were forcibly removed by Pennsylvania's colonial settlers. Tuscarora State Park is located 2 miles west of Tamaqua, just off Pennsylvania Route 309. History is located in the Locust Valley of Tuscarora State Park. This land was covered with an ancient growth forest of eastern white pine, American chestned, eastern calder, ash, hickory, gallows, oak and cherry trees. The land was controlled by the Iroquois League of the Five Nations, during the arrival of Susquehannock, Lenape and colonial settlers at various times. [2] Anthracite coal was found in Schuylkill County. Grasshopper Valley forests were harvested to provide timber to provide support in various buildings and homes built by coal mines and coal mining companies. Hemlock was used to produce leather products in tanneries built in the region. The great destruction of forests has left the Grasshopper Valley as a bushland open to floods, erosion and wildfires. Part of the land was cleared and cultivated. [2] The area in and around Tuscarora and Locust Lake State Parks was purchased by the Marchalonis family. They built Lake Locust and allowed forests and the region to grow again. In 1966, they sold their land to the state of Pennsylvania, and the parks soon opened. [2] Recreation Parks The park has seven hiking trails that roam decidued forests, meadows and fields. All of the trails are reclaimed log paths, which make them quite wide and are not marked by defining flames. [3] The Log Trail is an easy 0.3 mile long hiking trail with a length of 480 m. This old log path connects the Laurel and Edge trails and passes through a second forest of growth. [3] The Locust Mountain Trail is a moderate 640 m hiking trail. This path rises from the Crow Trail to Mount Locust and passes through a second forest. [3] The Laurel Trail was an easy 0.4 mile (640 m) grassy road To reach the trees that died of severe gypsy moth caterpillar damage in the 1980s. [3] The Lake View Trail is an easy 1.6 km trail parallel to Lake Tuscarora. This trail is sometimes used as a service route by park workers and parking concessions. [3] The Hill Trail is a moderately short 0.3 miles (480 m), but a steep trail parallels a power line and provides easy and direct access to the picnic area and beach from the park office. [3] Edge Trail is an easy 0.3 mile (480 m) grassy trail. It creates a boundary between forest and farmer's fields. [3] The Crow Trail is an easy 2.3 km long dirt road. This second growth passes through forests, pine and black pine fields, grassy fields and an overgrown meadow. [3] Lake Tuscarora is a warm aquaculture in lake Tuscarora park, which includes ferns and trees, bass, muskellunge, walleye, pickerel, catfish, yellow sea bass, trout and sunfish. Night fishing and ice fishing are prohibited. The rules and regulations of the Pennsylvania Fish and Boat Commission apply. All boats must be either sequen row boats or motor boats with electric motors. They must have a launch permit from the fish commission or the current register from any state. Kayaks, kayaks and pedal boats can be rented. [4] The lake is open for swimming, starting with memorial day weekend and ending labor day weekend. Starting in 2008, lifeguards will not be sent to the beach. [5] The maximum depth of the lake in the swimming area is 1.67 m. [4] Hunting is permitted on approximately 1,100 acres of Tuscarora State Park. It's forbidden to hunt moles. Hunters are expected to comply with the Pennsylvania Gaming Commission's rules and regulations. The primary game types are squirrels, white-tailed deer, rabbits, pheasant, woodcocks, pigeons, turkeys and fluffy forest chicken. [3] Tuscarora's overnight area has a one-night space with camping huts and dormitories.
