Certificate of Baptism: What is a Baptism Certificate? A baptism certificate is a certification that indicates information about the person being baptized, such as time and place. Parents usually baptize their young children but one can be baptized at any age. Who issues a Certificate of Baptism? Baptism certificates are usually issued by the local church. Is a Certificate of Baptism a Legal Document? In India, a baptism certificate is not a legal document or has a legal application process. This is due to the fact that India has Freedom of Religion as a fundamental right, which is guaranteed by article 25-28 of the Indian Constitution. Therefore, this certificate only reflects statements made by parents at that time, and according to their feelings and conscience. Therefore, a baptism certificate cannot be used for legal purposes, such as verification of the date of birth, or any other legal aspect.
