network of digitized testimony is now available through the Shoah Foundation's Video Archive.

The Shoah Foundation's Video Archive is a large-scale digitization project that has collected and digitized thousands of hours of interviews with survivors of the Holocaust and other genocides.

The foundation has partnered with universities, libraries, and museums around the world to provide access to these important materials. The archive contains interviews with survivors from a variety of backgrounds, including Jews, Poles, and other ethnic groups.

The Shoah Foundation's Video Archive is an important resource for researchers, educators, and students. It is also a valuable tool for the public, allowing people to learn about the difficulties faced by those who lived through these challenging times.

The foundation's work continues to grow, with new partnerships and initiatives being launched all the time. The Shoah Foundation is committed to preserving these stories and ensuring that they are not forgotten.

The Shoah Foundation's Video Archive is a testament to the power of technology and the importance of remembering the past. It is a reminder of the need to be vigilant and to stand up against violence and injustice.

The foundation's work is not done, and it will continue to collect and digitize testimony from survivors of the Holocaust and other genocides. The Shoah Foundation is dedicated to ensuring that these stories are heard and that the lessons of the past are never forgotten.
