I did this cheating table come out some time ago but forgot to post it :p But since I haven't played this game in a long time, I don't even know if all the scripts are working properly, so please share your feedback. Instead, all my ratings have been reset tolerable with all factions already unlocked. The speed code works well, so it's a new maximum code element. I can't ask any of you, but as far as factions are concerned, wouldn't it be better to do as your colleague d1748 did for Grim Dawn (without extension), a detailed list of factions in which you can enter the value you want directly, in positive or negative? Or just act in complementarity with your colleague by providing codes for the new factions cult Dreeg / Cult Solael / Cult Bysmael / Eldritch Horrors. Thank you. I appreciate what you're doing. In fact, this code works one way, after activation all factions will receive 25,000 points. At this point, it looks like a good thing, but I that monsters will no longer attack you because you are all guys friends. So if you have a request that he asks you to kill the monster boss, you won't be able to do so. It's the same with any faction. This can annoy most people. So use this as long as you think is useful (for a curiosity purpose) if you see what I mean. line 13 - mov (ecx'eax) '004', (float)0 - change 0 to 25000 Bal-Sagoth What is deception? Messages: 3 Joined: W Apr 02, 2019 1:04pm Reputation: 2 Post Bal-Sagoth St. Apr 03, 2019 2:21pm Yes, indeed, some factions should not be in positive, namely, the villain factions. I don't think you can side with the enemy as the game displays, it seems that you can only grow into a feud with evil. It can still be a good idea what you did, except you probably need to duplicate the code, one for the good guys, where the value will be 25,000 pounds, and one for the villains where the value of oughta be -20,000 (so you don't have to do it normally because it generates Nemesis class enemies, and it can be too hard to chew for a normal character. But I'm still saying it theoretically, with no idea how it's done and if it can be done. I'm not a computer guru, by all means. However, I thank you for your work, it is really useful that the maximum code element. Heck, it was a bummer for the farm to ether crystal to create dynamite ... For some reason I always finished too short on dynamite. Now I have 1000 stack and it's all for the better. Thank you. It doesn't work on components, tho. Except for large ones, such as a still beating heart, a dark milk or a plying brain. And this has a strange effect when you collect potions, they go from 1 to 100 instead of styling when you get a second one of the same kind as those common health potions. But it's not a problem, by all means. I'm not a hardcore player, on a long shot, and with you and your colleagues, I feel like I'm experiencing the heyday of the Replay/Game Genie/Game Shark action. I don't know why people have become so hostile to cheat codes (somewhere between the sixth and seventh generation of game consoles). There was a time not so long ago, the developers themselves would include cheat codes in their games (mostly on PC, tho)... I think developers are afraid that cheat codes will unlock paid DLC or something... Meh. Greedy bums. Back in my day (second/third generation console), we were excited to discover cheat codes for our games. But what you can try is to divide/combine them (right ctrl) and you get their maximum value. I think servings have a maximum value of 100, other items have a smaller/higher maximum value, I think. About fraud generally speaking, I think sometimes this word should be used in the wrong direction/understanding. But this is another discussion, already started Times. From my point of view, I don't even play the game, so calling me a scammer makes me lol than anything else. I do for my personal purpose and sometimes. I just share some fun food.
