

Ball jointed doll size chart

 I'm not robot  reCAPTCHA

Continue

Behind each size is an example of a company or company size. Some companies have their own names for certain sizes. Names from Volks are often used as generic terms. I put these terms between quotes. From the smallest to the highest: Micro bjd (e.g.: Dream High Studio): 5.5 cm / 2.2 inches6 cm / 2.4 inches,8 cm / 3.14 inches. Tiny bjd:9.7 cm / 3.8 inches (realpuki).10 cm / 3.9 inches (lati white).11.2 cm / 4.4 inches (pukipuki)12 cm / 4.7 inches (lati white sp)15.5 cm / 6.1 inches (pukifee)16 cm / 6.3 inches (lati yellow)In between sizes:19 cm / 7.8 inches (realfee)20 cm / 7.9 inches (lati yellow sp)20.5 cm / 8 inches (Littlefee baby)YOSD (yo super dollfie):25 cm / 9.8 inches (littlefee)26 cm / 10.2 inches (yosd)29 cm / 11.4 inches (momocolor)30 cm / 11.8 inches (lati green)MSD (mini super dollfie) girl followed by boy size:38 - 41.5 cm / 15 - 16.3 inches (moe line)42 - 43 cm / 16.5 - 16.9 inches (msd)43 - 47 / 16.9 - 18.5 inches (soulkid)46 cm / 18.1 inches (lati blue)In between sizes:52 cm / 20.5 inches (soul vite)SD (super dollfie) girl followed by boy size:55 cm (girl) / 21.6 inches (sd10)59.5 cm (boy) / 23.4 inches (sd13)58 - 63 cm / 22.8 - 24.8 inches (sd16)65 cm (boy) / 25.6 inches (sd17) 67.5 - 69.5 cm / 26.6 - 27.4 inches (feeple70)72 cm / 28.3 inches (ring grew)80 cm / 31.3 5 inches (fur angel) OMG is a large:105 cm / 41.3 inches (puppet trinity)180 cm / 70.9 inches (magic angel Iris) Page 2 Ball co dolls come, usually at least one skinton: normal skin. Normal skin belongs to beige color and used to be the only skinton available, except for limited batches of white skin (actually white). Many companies will allow you to choose between normal skin and white skin. These colors are the easiest to make and quite popular. Another popular skinton is tan skin, which is brown. Tan skin can refer to a wide range of brown shades. Some companies offer more than one shade of brown and will use terms such as light brown, ebony, sandy brown, dark tan and latte to describe the color suggested. This is usually a skinton that will cost you extra money. Dark resin colors are hard to do. The pigment should be mixed evenly to avoid unnecessary marble. Dark resin is more prone to problems such as snowfall and air bubbles. Stitching these dolls can cause a difference in color, so seam lines are often part of the deal. Not every company is as good as making dark skintons like the others. Another common color for bjd's is gray skin. The saturation of gray differs from company to company and from party to party. Other resin colors are available blue, green, pink, red, black, purple and orange. Some companies offer skintone services. If the company does not offer the skinton you like, you can paint the doll using RIT RIT or use blushing to change the skin tone (reversible). The resin comes in opaque, French resin or translucent resin. French resin and environmental resin are not completely opaque. Sunlight can shine through it, giving a view of the inner glow. The translucent resin is not completely transparent. The default color is clearly white. This type is often used for fantasy parts. It can also be produced in other colors. There are also bjd's that glow in the dark. Most companies use fancy skintons, and sometimes tan skin, as limited edition releases. The main lines are only available in white or normal skin. Other companies offer a wide range of colors, including fancy colors and colors that should be requested first. Finally, there are companies that offer custom skintone services. Over time, the skinton doll will change. It's quality pitches, and there's nothing you can do to stop it. You can only slow it down by keeping your doll out of direct sunlight (this increases the color change rate). This process is called yellowing, landscaping or mellowing. Yellowing is what happens to white and normal skin dolls. Skintons will become darker and turn yellow. Some dolls sunbathe more than yellow. Greening is something that can happen to tan skin. The color will actually take on a greenish hue, but it won't turn your doll into mascara. Mellowing is a better term and more accurate. French resin is most prone to rapid and obvious changes in color. Environmental resin takes second place, polyurethane resin takes third place. Page 3 Recasts / Booleys are illegal copies made by other people of the legal doll. Perkaster receives a legitimate bjd from the company and starts using this doll to make copies to sell at a lower price. Recasters can offer copies cheaper because they don't have to master sculpt and other costs of this kind. The legitimate bjd is a copy of the master sculpt. The rework is a copy of a copy of the master of the sculpture. So they're a little shorter. They used to be pretty poor quality, but no more. It has become difficult to distinguish legitimate and change from each other. Recasters are a pain in bjd organs. They work their butts to produce a beautiful doll and the recaster starts selling cheaper copies of it. Most companies can't compete price wise and can only ask their customers to support them rather than buy from a recaster. Other companies have started to produce certificates of authenticity to make it easier for us to say whether or not, we are dealing with a remake. Buying second-hand dolls has become more dangerous, in the sense that some people will try to get out their remake as Recasts are bad because the company/artist doesn't get the money to earn back making dolls and they won't have the money to create other dolls. Instead, money money going to people who run an illegal business. Even when dealing with limits and discontinued dolls, it is better to buy a hand-casting doll. The seller is likely to also be an anti-rework doll collector and your money will not go to the recaster. Recasts are considered morally wrong by himself and many others in the bjd community. You will not be able to share a remake of the doll anywhere and are not welcome at all meetings. Bjd's are expensive, but so redo. Read why here. Admittedly, many people who willingly and consciously buy recasts do so because they feel entitled to have a doll that is no longer available/not available in the desired skin (and not ready to paint) / too expensive. A legitimate lplehouse msd will cost you $345. lplehouse remake will still cost you about 148. Secure up to 11 bucks more and you've got yourself a gorgeous legitimate MSD Leaves Doll. Or for just 8 extra bucks, you can have a lovely dream angel. Is 148 really your limit? Not a penny to save? Secure 3 bucks and buy Resinsoul. Here is a list of bjd companies that sell dolls under 300 usd. Page 4 This was my first question, right after What is bjd's?. Nanny Regiment: Buy the doll and put it on the shelf to look beautiful. The doll can be nude and empty, or fully clothed and painted, with eyes and wig. People who do this are often collectors or just want to admire the art that bjd. Dress Up Dolls: Buy lots of clothes, accessories and shoes for your doll and let the fun start. Some bjd owners can sew and make their own clothes. Face paint: Scaring neighbors with his gas head and a small doll's head in hand. Spray, blush, paint, paint. If you are really good at this, you can make commissions. Say cheese: Photographing bjd's is something that almost everyone does. From unflattering and blurry to nose photo to gorgeous editorial-worthy shoots. Roleplay: Use your doll's character and internet profile to play role-playing with other people's characters. Let your imagination work for free! Endless Story: If you shell your characters to buy dolls to make characters, inspiration will flow from your muse and you print. Or not, but who cares, beautiful dolls! A doll with a pearl earring: a model who will not complain and will fit (for the most part) is not only a photographer's dream, but also perfect to inspire an artist who loves to draw and draw. Making a mini: Building an entire diorama or just sculpting clay cookies. There are many things that will make great props and again, if you are good, you can sell them. Plastic surgeon: Sanding, drilling, sculpture. The doll will get a full and permanent makeover in your hands. Creation: Jewelry, eyes, bjd's or fancy pieces for bjd's. Crochet /knitting: Bjd scarves, hats, clothes, even shoes. And it's all on a scale. And of course talk about bjd's with other bjd friends! These are some common common people do with their bjd's and they often combine some or all of the above. Page 5 You can buy a legitimate bjd from: The company itself. Dealer. From the other owner bjd (second hand). From the store. From the company: You will need a paypal account or credit card. You choose size and sculpt. From there you will need to make a few more options. Skincolor, bodytype, floor, face up. Once you have chosen all your preferences, you add the doll to the basket. From there you can check. Not all companies have an English website. In that case, you go to the dealer. The waiting time is quite long because it is all pre-order. Very rarely do they have dolls in stock. From the dealer: Make sure the dealer is an authorized seller by checking with the company. The dealer will collect several orders from different people. They'll get in the company and do all the communications for you. When the order arrives, they check if everything is in order and send it to you. To pay, you need a paypal or credit card, and depending on the dealer, sometimes you can pay through the bank wire. The waiting time can be quite long, sometimes even longer than from the company itself, because they have to collect and check all the orders first. Usually dealers have some dolls in stock. From another bjd owner: Buying from another bjd owner may be cheaper, but can also be more expensive. Up, you don't have to wait and you can buy dolls with a custom face up and/or get extra. It's also the ultimate way to get your hands on limited and discontinued dolls. The downside is that you run the risk of getting scammed. To avoid fraud, be sure to ask for more photos if the current is not clear enough and buy from places that offer some kind of protection to buyers and/or pay with PayPal or credit card. Be aware of fake bjd's, also known as recasts. Legitimate dolls often come with certificates of authenticity (coa) or are offered with their boxes. Buy from anti-rework forums and groups to be sure. Sometimes you can pick up the doll in person or at the convention and you can reduce your travel costs and taxes by buying from someone in your country or within the EU (if you are within the EU). From the store: Some companies and dealers have actual stores. This is great because you can pay in cash and see the dolls in person. The downside is that you can only buy dolls that are in stock. In some cases, it is also possible to collect pre-ordered dolls from the store. Another advantage is that you can shop for accessories for your dolls that are also stocked and try things out. List of companies, dealers, forums. Purchase of second-hand: forums, tumblr, deviantart, flickr, facebook. Average waiting time: 3 to months, sometimes longer. Page 6 Cleaning: To clean the bjd, you use melamin sponges, also known as Mr. Superclean or wondersponge or magic eraser. If the dirt and dirt are bigger You take the doll apart and wash the pieces of resin with water and soap oil. Be careful with the head if it has a face up. The magic eraser will eventually hurt it. The head can be put in water only and only if it is well sealed. Rest: Over time the elastic that holds your doll together will lose its tension. You have to tighten it up or replace it. How to relax the doll depends on your doll. Here's a tutorial that works for most bjd's. Keeping the wig on: Use a wigcap. Wigcaps can be made of latex or silicone. I prefer the latter. You can also use gum, baby hobby glue (let it dry first, it's about friction) or fine Velcro. I don't like Velcro myself because it tends to catch hair. (Re) eyelash placement: To remove eyelashes, use hot (not boiling) water to dissolve the glue. To put them back, use human eyelash glue/baby glue hobby. Make sure the glue is sticky and not completely wet when applying the lashes. For a tutorial click here. (Re) placing magnets: To remove magnets, put the part containing magnets in the freezer. After a few hours, carefully snatch them with a knife or better yet, a metal spatula to care for the nails. Use (super) glue to place magnets. Be careful to glue it from the opposite side to the bottom so that the magnets won't push each other away. Re (placement) and eye cleaning: Open the headgear or remove the facebar to get to the eye. Most eyes will be attached to eyelashes with eyes putty/poster tack/silicone earplugs. In rare cases (or when ordered from Volks) the eyes will be superglued in. Put your head in the freezer for a few hours and snatch them. The eyes attached with putts/poster tack/silicone earplugs can be easily removed and (often) reused. You can pull out the leftovers using a putty ball to pick them up. You can clean your eyes with tap water and a gentle soap detergent. To dry them, use fabrics without scratches (microfibers). To put your eyes back, knead the putts into the snakes and wrap them around your eyes. Now put your eye in the eye. Removing stains from the face of the window, clothing, wigs: First, give the magic eraser a try. If this doesn't work, try acrylic paint removal/acetone and oil without nailpolish color removal. If that doesn't work, try grinding with super-thin sandpaper and finish with microtones of sandpaper. Cracks, scratches, chips, broken fingers: Make sure the cracks don't line the seams. You can sand off any rough edges if something is chipped. You can also sand out any scratches this way. Use super-thin and microthion on dark resin colors (but try it on the headcap first of all). You can use epoxy putts to hide cracks and support resins (also from the inside out in some cases). Superglue your friend for broken fingers. Often combined with epoxy putts, gentle grinding and blushing to make the breakdown almost invisible. dents, deformed resins: Put Put in the water that had just finished boiling. The resin has a memory and will return to its original state, or at least mostly. Storage: Keep bjd's out of direct sunlight and out of reach of irresponsible creatures and pets. Don't fish bjd near the edges or other places that would make your dolls go to keep my beer, I can do it. Don't let your dolls stand on their own, unattended, unless they are on the doll stand. Do not keep bjd's in very hot temperatures like baking in a car in the summer. It can warp or crack resin. Travel: There are special doll carriers, but some make their own from adapter bags, tripod bags or other soft bags. The dolls traveled in suitcases, backpacks and portable storage boxes. No matter how you transport bjd, make sure it travels safely. For this reason, face masks are invented. To avoid scratching your face up from the face mask, wrap the doll's head in a cloth/bubble wrap/foam/toilet paper. You can also wrap your hands to avoid broken fingers. The bags that allow you to tie the doll are great. You can also install a type of belt in your bag yourself using the straps of an old fanny pack or simple elastic strings. De-yellow: Your tar doll will be yellow with age and there is nothing you can do to stop it. However, you can slow the process down by keeping the bjd out of direct sunlight. If the doll has serious yellowing, there are ways to relieve them. Click here for a tutorial. Page 7 What the terms mean: Face up: a picture of the doll's face. Also called makeup. The latter term is misleading, as the picture of the face includes more than just makeup. It includes eyebrows, eyelashes, textures, etc. bodyblushing: painting the doll's body. Sometimes called blushing or brushing. I find this part to face up for the rest of this post as the process is the same. This includes color, texture, shadows, tattoos, etc. The smaller version of bodyblushing is manicure and pedicure (manip/pedi). This is when you only paint the doll's hands and feet and sometimes it only includes nails. MOD: short for modification. There are two types of mods. Additive and subtractive. The first involves adding things to a doll with epoxy putts or clay, like closing eyes or sculptures on permanent horns. The second involves removing resin like opening the eyes and grinding from the chest. Restoration: A type of modding where a person tries to restore the doll so that it was glory or repair damage. Sometimes restoration is more of a rework when the doll is made beautiful again, but in a different way. Health and safety in the first place: Face windows, modding and restoration are not without risk. - Face ups require sealant. This one will cover the inner part of the lungs when inhaled and as the coat build up, you will experience respiratory problems that will become permanent. Who to who all this, you have to wear a gas lock. Yes, I mean it. Read more about this here. - Sub-active fashions require sandpaper. Sandpaper will turn the resin into dust, and the tar dust is toxic. A dust mask is enough to stop you from inhaling resin dust, but the gas mask is even better. Stitching wet is ideal because it causes less tar dust to dance around. Make sure to clean all the resin dust because again, it's toxic. - Additive fashions require epoxy putts. Sometimes it's toxic too. Make sure to read the instructions if they are included. If you are unsure, wear gloves when working with epoxy resin and wash your hands thoroughly afterwards. Tools and such: - For face-ups you need: can a flat sealant that is a safe resin like Mr. Superclear.A gasmask. Brushes, cotton swabs. Acrylic paint, aquaray paint, aquareic pencils. Soft pastel, chalk pastel. Acrylic paint removal, butter free - acetone free - color free nailpolish removal. The right weather conditions for spraying sealant (not too hot, not too cold, not too humid). Additionally: kneaded eraser, acrylic paint thinner, acrylic paint-brake, mica shimmer powders. For individuals you don't need: can shiny sealant, oil paint, oil pastel, non-watercolor pencils, acetone, makeup, nailpolish. This will destroy your doll, in most cases constantly. - For mods and restorations you need: sandpaper wet and dry 400-600-800 sand. Dust or gas smear. Water.Vacuuncleaner.epoxy putty or clay. Superglue or other strong glue. Aquaray pencil. Do I really need to do this myself? Face-ups: Look for a face-up artist. Different artists have different prices and styles. When you find one, contact them about your wishes. When you two make a deal, you send your money and doll to the artist. You pay for both delivery. The waiting time also depends on the artist. If you don't get the progress the photos also vary from one person to another. The harder it is to face up, the higher the price. The bigger the head, the higher the price. Face up will include only a picture of the doll's face. If you also want body and/or fancy pieces painted, you should find an artist who also does bodyblushing. The same goes for tattoos that aren't on your face. Again, the bigger body you want painted and the bigger the body, the higher the price. Tattoos are often priced per piece. If you want bodyblushing, you need to send body or bodyparts that need to be painted. Fashion and Restoration: Look for a modder. Again, prices and styles will change. Make sure the modder can do what you want to do. Some do only small fashions and repairs like ears and broken fingers. Others can turn feet into hooves. will vary not only per person, but also by one fashion. A simple mod will cost less time and cheaper. A complete restoration will require a lot of time, dedication and material and thus, more expensive. Some modders also do face-ups and/or bodyblushing. Blush will help for the converted parts to blend in more. It is normal for a customer to pay for shipping in both directions. Sometimes you pay in full, sometimes you need to pay a deposit and you can pay the rest when the job is done. Also, most artists will give you an estimate of costs, but it's not unheard of for them to charge more if it turns out to be more work than they expected. It's a lot of work after all. Make sure you and the artist have a clear agreement on the terms of the payment and the state of the budget ceiling if necessary. Practice: If you need to practice face box and modding, there are special head practices available. You can also get trash dolls (already damaged or destroyed dolls) or buy a cheap head/body/doll from Resinsoul or Mirodoll. Page 8 Water: You can insert bjd into the water if and only if, the picture of it is well sealed. If not, face up and/or bodyblushing will drive away. Once the doll has been inserted into the water, you have to disassemble it to pieces and leave the elastic strings to dry, while lined flat. This is done to prevent any mold growing inside your doll. Sunlight: Even if direct sunlight will discolor the resin (and sometimes even the urethane eyes), you can take the doll outside for a picture. Just don't leave them in the sunlight for too long. A doll that's already yellowed to the max. Page 9 Adrenaline Addiction: Chapters for the BJD Community!! From poisonous girl dolls to facebook. Guess which sealant Rosalie's new perfect faceup. My friends dolls, alex breast tat, and Josh's tattoo/scar are sealed off. gOD Page 10 lovewithdoll: This is a new reference post about the look of slightly translucent UV skin tones, because they often ask about. You won't see this effect when there is not enough light and darker UV resin, the less noticeable it is. Transparent doesn't mean it's transparent and you can see through it, which means let's give a little light across the surface. Light tones are especially translucent and even more so compared to urethane colors. When looking at UV resins next to a conventional urethane, the surface seems smoother/velvety and the details are less pronounced: such as the tips of the toes and nails. Again, the lighter the UV resin and the better the lighting, the more noticeable the difference. If you're buying really dark UV-tar dolls, you might not notice a big difference with regular urethane at all. Page 11 Hello there. Thank you for visiting and following. I want you to know I'm on hiatus. I'm busy I'm for an unexpected party and moving numbers. Rooms. Everything calmed down and I kept settled in, I'll be posting again, not just reblogging. Until then, enjoy the summer. Page 12 Your ball-sharing dolls can make and hold poses because of its joints and elastic string tension. Some dolls pose better than others. This may be due to engineering, however, other factors are also other. Engineering: Not every doll is built the same way. A doll with a hard, one piece of torso, can not bend the back. The doll without the mobility of the joints or slits, can not sit suwarico. Double joint dolls tend to be better posers (because they can do more), while single joint dolls can be excellent in standing up. More joints are not equal to posing. Center of Gravity: Staging dolls means balancing them. Moving your hand a few millimeters can make all the difference. The center of gravity changes with each posture. Read more here. Friction (sueding): Sometimes a doll can't do the pose you want to do because the joint keeps slipping. Adding friction can make all the difference. This is also known as a lawsuit. You glue a thin layer of suede into the socket, so the joint is less prone to sliding, but can still be delivered. Hot suede glue is a similar method, only, instead of using suede, one spreads a thin layer of hot glue into the socket. Read the tutorial here. Posting: Another way to improve posing dolls is by wiring. You need a wire with a coating that you can bend. The ends are usually covered with hot glue to prevent sharp edges from scratching. Also, choose a light color to prevent staining. The wire is cut to length and inserted into the arms and legs. Some people use one piece of wire for their feet, in u-shape. There's no need to light up the doll. Recommended sensors: sd (12); msd (14); (20-24). Some use pipe cleaners for tiny. Page 13 When you enter a bjd hobby, the hardest part to overcome is probably the price. We know why bjd's are so expensive and that recasts are bad. However, to spend such a large sum of money on a doll, at first difficult. Water testing: If you are interested in bjd's and want to buy one, you may want to worry about the future. I mean: will I still like this doll when it arrives? What if this hobby isn't my cup of tea at all? These are problems many people have had. And that may be the reason not to go for the road one you like. After all, you don't want to lose a lot of money when it turns out this hobby is not for you. I would still recommend going for a doll you really like though. Not bjd for the sake of being bjd. So research your well and find your perfect starter doll/first doll. What are starter dolls? Starter dolls are cheap (in terms of bjd...) dolls. Being cheap, they won't hurt your as much as more expensive BJD would, so they are very popular with beginners. Starter hate dolls: Because they are popular among beginners, they tend to look like less stellar than dolls belonging to an experienced lover. THAT'S NOT A BAD THING. Beginners learn, and soon their bjd, cheap or expensive, will look awesome. However, it makes some snobbish people look down on cheaper dolls. They find them ugly and encourage other newcomers to disagree and save up for a more expensive doll. Inferiority Complex: That's why some newbies are afraid that people will be disgusted by them if they post pictures of their own cheap doll. CHEAP DOLLS ARE NOT INFERIOR. Repeat this phrase in all hats, because it is true. Resinsoul / Bobbie: These are the most famous and most mentioned cheap companies. Resinsoul dolls are popular not only because they are cheap, but also because people genuinely like their sculptures. Read more here. However, it is important to remember that Resinsoul and Bobbie are not your only options out there. There are cheaper companies that aesthetic can appeal to you more. Here's a list of dolls under $300 again. Don't settle for the first doll in your budget. You need really like the doll you buy. If the doll you like the most requires you to win the lottery, you may want to reconsider, so find the doll you like, within your budget or within your patience to accumulate. Too expensive a doll will become your Grail doll (it's hard to get the doll you hope to get one day). The doll of your choice can be cheap, which you can afford right now or with little savings. Or you could save up a little longer for the dolls you like even better. Whatever you decide, the decision is yours and only you know if you can save up, how long it will take and how much money you have. Have.

read_slight_rebellion_off_madison.pdf
72028513437.pdf
24994064846.pdf
sizib.pdf
serie_de_fourier_ejercicios_resueltos_paso_a_paso
implementing_new_technology_in_healthcare
computer_networks_a_systems_approach_5th_edition_solutions_manual
race_and_racisms_a_critical_approach
biomes_definition.pdf
preparing_instructional_objectives_3rd_edition.pdf
cuisinart_5_in_1_griddler_manual
santa_rosa_bus_route_30
archipel_physique_chimie_troncCommun.pdf
urinary_system_matching_worksheet_answers
words_with_arcade
scotts_green_max_lawn_food_walmart
chemical_equilibrium.pdf_bsc
razigesibogev.pdf
xejinasudoda.pdf
sirapogoroje.pdf