Diffuse large B-cell lymphoma (DLBCL) is the most common subtype of non-Hodgkin lymphoma (NHL) and its median age at diagnosis is 50 years. DLBCL can be classified according to the presence of germinal center (GC) or activated B-cell (ABC) phenotype. ABC-DLBCL is associated with a less favorable prognosis, with a median survival of approximately 9 months and a 5-year survival rate of 33%. Survival in this subtype is strongly associated with the use of the anti-CD20 monoclonal antibody rituximab, with or without chemotherapy. However, despite the addition of rituximab to the chemotherapy regimen, DLBCL remains an incurable disease, and a significant number of patients develop refractory disease after front-line therapy. There is therefore a need to develop new therapeutic options for treating DLBCL and other lymphoid cancers. There is further a need to develop effective treatments for those patients with refractory disease. 4.0.0 org.springframework.boot 520fdb1ae7
