Offices, FBI Theodore L. Gunderson (November 7, 1928–July 31, 2011) was the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation special agent in charge and head of the LOS ANGELES FBI. According to his son, he worked on the Marilyn Monroe case and the John F. Kennedy case. He was the author of the bestselling book How to Find Anyone Without Leaving the House. Early Life and FBI Ted Gunderson was born in Colorado Springs. He graduated from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in 1950. Gunderson joined the Federal Bureau of Investigation in December 1951 under the leadership of Edgar Hoover. He has served in mobile, Knoxville, New York City and Albuquerque offices. He served as Assistant Special Agent in New Haven and Philadelphia. In 1973, he became head of the FBI's Memphis office and then head of the Dallas FBI office in 1975. Ted Gunderson was appointed head of the Los Angeles FBI in 1977. In 1979, he was one of the few interviewed for the job of FBI director, which eventually went to William H. Webster. After leaving the FBI, Gunderson set up a private investigative firm, Ted L. Gunderson and Associates, in Santa Monica. In 1980, he became the defense investigator for Dr. Green Beret Jeffrey R. McDonald, who was convicted of killing his pregnant wife and two daughters in 1970. Gunderson obtained an affidavit from Helena Stockley, confessing her involvement in the murders, which she said were committed by a satanic cult of which she was a member. He also investigated the most expensive criminal case in U.S. history at the time, McMartin's preschool trial in Manhattan Beach, California, which resulted in no convictions. At the 1995 conference in Dallas, Gunderson warned of the proliferation of secret occultist groups and the danger posed by the New World Order, the supposed shadow government that would control the United States Government. He also claimed that a slave auction had been held in Las Vegas in which Saudi agents sold children to men, that 4,000 ritual human sacrifices were held in New York each year, and that the Alfred federal building had been destroyed. The Murrah in Oklahoma City was implemented by the U.S. government in 1995. Gunderson knew that in the United States there was a secret, broad network of groups that kidnap children and and subject them to ritual abuse and subsequent loss of life. In Labella v. FBI (2012), Gunderson presented an affidavit that, among other things, stated that thousands of victims were targeted by an illegal government criminal company, a gay company that operates 24 hours a day in the United States... whose administrators can instantly initiate surveillance, telephone conversations and harassment against any person in the country. The affidavit is used by some individuals to justify their beliefs in the widespread gang harassment. Gunderson's personal life was a connection with music producer and conspiracy director Anthony J. Hilder and interviewed him on various occasions. The two men appeared at numerous conferences together. They both claimed that the 1993 explosion at the World Trade Center was the result of FBI agent provocateurs. Gunderson was a member of the Constitution Party. In 2008, Gunderson stated that he had tested positive for arsenic and cyanide poisoning. Gunderson's teammate, Dr. Edward Lucidi, treated Gunderson and said his fingers were blackened, a characteristic symptom of arsenic poisoning. On July 31, 2011, Gunderson's son reported that his father had died of bladder cancer. Inquiries : Associated Press, (2011-08-19). Former FBI chief Memphis Gunderson dies UTSanDiego.com.
