Brad is skilled in building innovation ecosystems and forging relationships with new external partners to help corporate clients broaden their impact. As a business strategist and consultant to companies and institutions, Brad works on high-visibility, stakeholder-driven projects and initiatives such as orchestrating the implementation of cloud-based technology solutions, stabilizing cost structures for multimillion-dollar projects, and re-engaging large, disparate teams. His data-driven approach has maximized ROI, bolstered transformational and operational capabilities, and enhanced the effectiveness of internal business functions.

In the 15 years before founding his consulting firm, Nimble Sherpa LLC, Brad held corporate leadership roles where his focus was on delivering high-impact change and operational solutions. As a strategist at ManpowerGroup, Brad guided the Finance and IT leadership teams in the selection of projects with higher-return potential while reducing project portfolio turnover by 20% to reduce risk. At Capgemini, Brad directed engagements for clients in diverse industries and orchestrated solutions that produced double- and triple-digit performance improvements. Early in his career at AT&T, he advanced up the ladder in roles in financial management.

Brad holds an M.B.A. in General Management from NYU Stern School of Business and a B.S. in Finance from Lehigh University. A lifelong learner with a keen interest in professional development, he attends Executive Education classes with MIT Sloan and holds certifications from SAFe, Scrum Alliance and PMI.

Brad credits his triumph over a unique health challenge at age 17 as a driving force in his determination to stay positive and build a rewarding career and personal life. He resides in Connecticut where he is a devoted husband as well as father to two beautiful daughters.
