See the media report. Old MacDonald Had a Farm is a children's song and nursery rhyme about a farmer named MacDonald (sometimes known as MacDonald or Macdonald) and the various animals he keeps on his farm. Each verse of the song changes the name of the animal and its corresponding noise. In many versions the song is cumulative, with animal sounds from all the previous verses added to each subsequent verse. For example, in verse a cow is used as an animal, and a moo is used as an animal. It has the Roud Folk Song Index number 745. Old MacDonald had a farm, E-I-E-I-O! And on his farm he had a cow, E-I-E-I-O! With moo-moo here and moo-mu there, Here's the moo, there's moo. Everywhere moo-mu, Old MacDonald had a farm, E-I-E-I-O! Early versions In the 1917 book Tommy's Tunes, a compilation of World War I songs by F. T. T. Nettleingham, the song Ohio has very similar lyrics, albeit with a slightly different farm name and refrain: Old McDougal had a farm. E-I-E-I-O, and he had several dogs on this farm. E-I-E-I-O, with onion-wow here, and onion wow there, here's the bow, there's wow, there's onion-wow everywhere. This version lists eight species of animals: some dogs (bow-wow), some chickens (cluck cluck), some ducks (charlatan charlatan), some cows (moo-mu), some pigs (oink oink), some cats (meow meow), goat (baa baa) and donkey (hi-ha). The traditional ballad index considers Tommy's Tunes version to be the earliest known version of Old Macdonald Had a Farm, although it contains numerous variants, some of which are much older. Two of these versions were published in Vance Randolph's Ozark Folksongs in 1980. One of them was Old Missouri, performed by Mr. H. F. Walker of Missouri in 1922, a version that calls different parts of the mule rather than different animals: Old Missouri was a mule, he-hi-hee-ho, and on this mule had two ears, he-hi-he-ho. With flip flops here and flip flops there, and here the flop and there flop and everywhere flip-flop Old Missouri was mule, he-hi-he-he-ho. The British version of the song The Farmyard, or The Merry Green Fields was collected in 1908 by 74-year-old Mrs Goody in Marylebone Workhouse, London, and published in Cecil Sharp's collection of English folk songs. Up was I was on my fa-ther farm for a day in May morn-ing ear-ly; Feed-ing of my cows fa-ther's On May Day morn-ing ear-li, with moo-mu here and moo-mu there, Here's the moo, there's moo, here Mu. Six Six maids come and gang-long about 'me mer-paradise green farm-yard fields.' Perhaps the earliest recorded member of this family of songs is a number from an opera called The Kingdom of the Birds, published in 1719-1720 in Wit and Myrtle thomas D'Urtheus, or tablets for cleaning melancholy: In the fields in the cold and snow, Watching late and early; There I keep my father's cows, There I Milk 'Em Every Year: Boing Here, Boing There, Here Boo, There Boo, Every Boo, We Challenge All Care and Fight, in the charming country of life. (October 2017) (Learn how and when to delete this template message) The lyrics have been translated from English into other languages and slightly altered to meet rhythmic and cultural requirements. In most languages below, it is still like a children's song on the same melody. In Africa the song is called Ou Oom Klasie het 'n plaas (meaning Old Uncle Klaus has a farm). An Egyptian Arabic version of the song exists, with Geddo Ali (in Egyptian Arabic: جدو علي means Grandpa Ali) as a farm character. There is a translation of the author's law by Karenn Presti, published in 2017 in my first Armenian song. In Chinese, there are multiple versions of the song with the same melody. The most popular is Wang lão shansheng yōu (in Chinese: 王老先生有块地, which means Old Mr. Wang had some land). In Czech, it's Donald Farm mule (meaning Uncle Donald had a farm). In Danish, this is Jens Hansen havde en bondeg'd (meaning Jens Hansen had a farm). In Finnish it is Piipolan vaarilla oli talo (meaning Grandpa Piippola had a house). In French it is Dans la ferme de Mathurin (meaning On the farm of Maturina). In German, this onkel jorg hat einen Bauernhof (meaning Uncle Jorge has a farm). The alternative version is the old Macdonald 'ne Farm hat (short for eine Farm), keeping the farmer's English name and translating the rest literally (meaning Old Macdonald has a farm). In Hebrew it is LaDod Moshe hayta chava (in Hebrew: לדוד משה הייתה חווה, which means Uncle Moses had a farm). This version was translated by Abraham Broshi. In Italian it is Nella vecchia fattoria (meaning In the old farm). The farmer is sio Tobia (meaning Uncle Tobias). In one Japanese version, it is Yukai-na Makiba (Japanese: ゆかいな牧場, which means Happy Farm). Ichiro, Giro and Saburo are farmers who have animals. In another Japanese version, this Makku no Ojisan (japanese: マクおじさん means Old Mac), sounds playfully like the Western version. In Japanese, Kansai has a parody osaka umaimon no Uta (in (in The question)阪うまいもん歌 means Yummy Foods in Osaka), made by the Osaka Puppet Theatre Company in 1993. In Korean, it is Geulae geulaeseo (in Korean: 그래 그래서, which means Yes, so). In this version, farmer Old Mr. Park has a farm and animals. In Malay it is Pak Atan Ada Ladan (meaning Uncle Athan had a farm). In Persian, this is بیرمرد مهریون (meaning the Good Old Man). In Polish, it's Stari Donald Farm' myash (meaning Old Donald was a farm) or Pan McDonald Farm Mia (meaning Mr. McDonald had a farm). In Portuguese the most common version is Na quinta do tio Manel (meaning On Uncle Manel's farm), with alternative versions of Seu Lobato tinha um s'tio (meaning Mr. Lobato was a site) or even Ovelho McDonald tinha uma fazenda (meaning Old MacDonald had a farm). In Russian, unofficial variations: zenith, zenith. In translation of Leonid Dzuborrough cyril.: In Serbian the song, with very different lyrics, but with the same melody, is Svako jutro jedno jaje organizmu snagu daje (meaning One egg a day gives strength to the human body). In Slovenia it is Na kmetiji je lepo (meaning on the farm it is beautiful). It may be a children's song, but in some versions of the song, the lyrics were made from a child to a vulgar song. Some Spanish versions include En la granja de Pepito (meaning On The Pepito Farm), El Viejo MacDonald ten'a una granja (meaning Old Macdonald was a farm), el granjero ten'a un campo (meaning Farmer had a field), or En la vieja factora (meaning In the old factory). In Swedish it is Per Olsson hade en bonnag'd (meaning Per Olsson had a farm). In Turkish it is Ali Babain Bir Siftlishi Var (meaning Ali Baba has a farm). Recordings and appearances in the media The oldest version, listed in the traditional index ballad, is the Sam Patterson trio Old MacDonald had a farm, released by the Edison label in 1925. There were versions of such famous artists as Frank Sinatra (Capital, 1960), Elvis Presley (in his film Double Trouble), Nat King Cole and Ella Fitzgerald (on her 1967 album Verve Whisper Not). Bing Crosby included the song in a medley on his album Join Bing and Sing Along (1959) The version was used in a 1952 campaign ad for Adlai Stevenson II's unsuccessful presidential campaign with slightly altered lyrics promoting Stevenson's campaign's appeal to farmers. The song is played (with some actors) in the 1951 film Lavender Hill Mob. During a performance at the Ultra Music Festival 2014 in Miami, electronic musician deadmau5 performed a remix of Martin Garrick's song Animals, which changed to follow the melody of the song.
