

How to Use the OurStoryBridge Teacher's Guide

What is an OurStoryBridge project?

OurStoryBridge is the free resource and tool kit for producing a crowdsourced, community, online story project emphasizing audio history collecting and sharing based on the Adirondack Community model, but adaptable for any community or topics. Communities across the country are starting their own, local OurStoryBridge story projects. Over 550 three-to five-minute stories with accompanying photos and podcasts from OurStoryBridge projects are suggested for classroom use and more are added frequently.

Why should I use these stories in my classroom? What do they add to current resources?

Meet your students in the media that compels them. Use these continually updated stories and podcasts from OurStoryBridge projects across the country by assigning stories relevant to a lesson as homework, playing them in the classroom, or suggesting them for activities or projects. Use them to introduce a topic, make a concept memorable, or stimulate discussion, making your classes appealing and memorable.

Bring your lessons to life. As primary sources with audio and visual content, lessons come alive. Students connect what they are learning in the classroom to the real world, past, and present.

How can I use OurStoryBridge project stories and podcasts in my classroom?

1. All stories and podcasts currently catalogued are in Story Summaries; click the hyperlink title for each story to play it.
2. For middle and high school classes, click on the Story Selection Chart. Review categories like Social Studies, STEM, or English. Under those categories find courses closest to what you are teaching. Click the hyperlink title for each story or podcast to play it.
3. For stories that may have specific interest for elementary school or college classes, go directly to Story Summaries to make your story and podcast selections from the final column. Click the hyperlink title. In both the Story Selection Chart and Story Summaries, stories and podcasts are identified by the same number.
4. In addition to building the stories into your lessons, you can construct assignments for them like in this Sample School Assignment or review the School Story Projects Protocol to get your students to tell their own stories.
5. You and the students can also go directly to the local story project websites listed at the top on Story Summaries.

Why are there so many Adirondack Community stories?

Adirondack Community is the first OurStoryBridge project and serves as the model. As with all the OurStoryBridge projects, the stories and podcasts have relevance beyond each local community's borders, in any classroom.

What are the podcasts?

At this time, podcasts are only available on Adirondack Community, the original OurStoryBridge project. Other projects will create their own podcasts and all will be linked as produced. Podcasts of about 20- to 25-minutes combine stories on a specific topic, often timely, and include narration.

Who told these stories?

The storytellers are from communities across the country and their stories teach universal lessons. The challenges residents have faced, historical relevance of residents and visitors, cultural and outdoor activities, and surprises have meaning beyond their location. Stories recently added include those from the Igiugig indigenous tribe in Alaska; Madras, Oregon; Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, North Hero, Vermont; and storytellers from across the nation in Freedom Story Project based out of Lake Placid, New York.
