Essentials of contemporary managemen

Gareth R. Jones received his doctorate from Lancaster University, England, and was trained in economics and organizational theory and behavior. His research interests include organizational design for performance, business evolution, and corporate-level strategy. Dr. Jones has published articles in all major management journals and has co-authored several textbooks. Jones and George are dedicated to the task of making it real for students. As a team, they have the unique qualification to write about the organizational challenges facing today's managers. No other author's team in the discipline of management corresponds to their combined experience of research and text writing. The basics of management are summarized surveys of current management theories and research. Using various real world examples from small, medium and large companies, the reader learns how these ideas are used by practicing managers. The organization of this text follows the basic functional approach of planning, organizing, leading and controlling; But the content is flexible and encourages instructors to use the organization they are most comfortable with. The themes of diversity, ethics, and information technology are clearly evident in textual examples, photographs, unpacking stories and end-of-chapter materials - all areas that truly serve to bring to life the realities of the workplace that today's student will encounter during a career. Jennifer George is also a professor of management at Lowry Mays College and the Graduate School of Business at the University of Texas. She holds a bachelor's degree in psychology/sociology from Wesleyan University, a master's degree in business administration in finance from New York University, and a Ph.D. in Management and Organizational Behavior from New York University.
