The painting by Johann Georg Melchior Schmidtnr, circa 1700, is in the Catholic pilgrimage church of St. Peter am Perlach, otherwise known as the Perlach Church, in Augsburg, Bavaria, Germany. Pope Francis saw the picture while in Germany as a student and promoted his sneeze in Latin America. The only church dedicated to her in North America is Our Lady Undoer of Knots in Pikesville, Md., an independent Catholic congregation in the Catholic Apostolic Church of North America. Painting The painting, performed in baroque style by Johann Georg Melchior Schmidtnr (1625-1707), shows the Blessed Virgin Mary standing on the crescent moon (the usual way of depicting Mary under her title the Immaculate Conception), surrounded by angels and with the Holy Spirit in the form of a dove suspended above her circle of stars as she unties knots in a long strip while resting her foot on the head of a knotted snake. The serpent represents the devil, and her treatment of him fulfills the prophecy of Genesis 3:15: I will lay enmities between you and the woman, and thy seed and her seed: she shall crush your head, and tishould lie in waiting for her heel. [1] Below is a human figure and his dog accompanying a much smaller angel. This scene is often interpreted as Tobias with his dog and archangel Raphael travels to ask Sara to be his wife. [2] The concept of Mary untying knots derives from a work of St Irenaeus Lyons, Adversus haereses (Against Heresies). In book III, chapter 22, he presents a parallel between Eve and Mary, describing how the unobedience to Eve's disobedience was solved by the obedience of Mary. For that which Virgin Eve had bound by unbelief, this Virgin Mary set free by faith. [3] The two small figures have also been interpreted as a representation of Wolfgang Langenmantel, the benevolence grandfather of the benevolence, who in his distress is ruled by a guardian angel to Father Jakob Rem in Ingolstadt. [2] History of St. Peter's Basilica with Perlach Tower The painting was donated around 1700 by Hieronymus Ambrosius Langenmantel (1641-1718).[citation needed] a cannon of the monastery of Saint Peter in Augsburg. The donation is said to be linked to an incident in his family. His grandfather Wolfgang Langenmantel (1586-1637) was on the verge of separation from his wife Sophia Rentz (1590-1649) and therefore sought the help of Jakob Rem, the Jesuit priest of Ingolstadt. Father Rem prayed to the Blessed Virgin Mary and said: I diesem religious Akt erhebe ich das Band der Ehe, solve alle Knoten und glatte es [In this religious act I raise the bonds, to loosen all knots and even them[19]. Immediately peace was restored between husband and wife, and the separation did not occur. In memory of this event, their grandson commissioned the painting of Untier of Knots. [citation needed] Devotion The first chapel named Mary, Untier of Knots was completed in 1989 in Styria, Austria, inspired as a prayer in response to the Chernobyl nuclear tragedy. [4] The image of Mary, Undoer of Knots is particularly revered in Argentina and Brazil.[2] where churches have been named after her and devotion to her has become widespread and which the Guardian called a religious craze. [5] This Catholic devotion has grown since Jorge Mario Bergoglio, S.J. (who would later become Pope Francis, after a time as Archbishop of Buenos Aires), brought a postcard of the painting to Argentina in the 1980s after seeing the original while studying in Germany. [6] The devotion reached Brazil at the end of the 20th century. According to Regina Novaes, of the Institute of Religious Studies in Rio de Janeiro, Mary, Untier of Knots attracts people with small problems. [5] Bergoglio had this image of Mary engraved on a chalice he presented to Pope Benedict XVI and another chalice bearing her image, the work of the same silversmith, to be presented to Pope Francis on behalf of the Argentine people. [6] In Buenos Aires, a copy of the icon was made and provided by the artist, Dr. Ana de Betta Berti.[8] for the Church of San Jos  del Talar, which has held it since December 8, 1996. On the 8th of each month, thousands of people make the pilgrimage to this church. [9] Knowing about Pope Francis' special devotion to this image, a new South Ambassador to the Vatican in 2018, Baek Man Lee, presented him with a Korean painting of Our Lady Undoer of Knots. [10] Devotion to Mary, Untier of Knots, can be found in numerous religious sites around the world. [4] Title in other languages This section does not quote any sources.
