GENERAL MEMETICS NEWSLETTER

September 2022

Dear Friends,

What are you investing in?

A young Sales Consultant from a German Electricity Generation Company sits down next to Clinton on our flight from Germany to Sardinia. Clinton senses E.C.C.O. at work, so opens up a conversation which quickly steers into the energy situation of Europe. The young man shares that the German government already plans to ration energy over the winter, meaning that some days whole parts of Germany will simply have no electricity. Since Germany switched from nuclear to methane for generating electricity, the pipeline shutdown is having significant consequences. The young man is traveling with his girlfriend to find a 'safer' place to spend their winter: checking out Sardinia, Rhodes, Croatia... Clinton asks how else they are preparing themselves?

But, when you have clarity that ownership of any piece of land is an illusion (how can a human being own a piece of Gaia?!), or that cryptocurrency is a hierarchical gameworld easily hijacked by psychopaths, or that trading corporate shares is a gambling addiction poorly disguised as respectable activity, these offers for 'security' are a joke.

As Modern Culture collapses into itself, its valuables will lose - are losing - their credibility.

What else is there to invest in?

Tim Bennet invites us, in Bambi vs. The Collapse of Civilization, to consider whole new forms of investment. He writes: We can take the blow. (We don't really have much choice.) Perhaps we can even survive it. We can begin by finding our place and our people. We can start an edible forest garden and clean out some old barrels for water catchments and walk down the road and meet all of our neighbors and get together for a potluck and a meeting and talk about what's coming. We can find a facilitator and do the feelings work we need to do, moving through the grief and the hopelessness, the fear, the anger, moving through them and beyond them, moving together, arm in arm, hand to hand, heart to heart, discovering that we are strong enough to bear such things, that we are still whole enough to not be undone by them, finding that together, we can stand and face the headlights, we can stand and hold each other as the truck hits, and finding, maybe, just maybe, that some of us are still alive after it has passed. Some of us need to do this work, because most will not. Refusing to feel their fear now, they will be forced to feel it upon impact, when the trauma is greatest, the losses so hard to bear. They will need our help.

Excerpted from Appendix D of the new edition of [Conscious Feelings by Clinton Callahan.]

As Possibilitators, the investment in Archiarchy is not only limited to 'doing the work', but also to provide the work for those longing to enter presence or the new culture space of Archiarchy.

Archiarchy is centered on Nonmaterial Value. Investing in Archiarchy starts with investing in your own Nonmaterial Value by practicing to an absurdly effective skill level. No one can do this for you. More interestingly, no one can stop you from doing it.

Becoming absurdly effective in delivering your Nonmaterial Value is one of the true joys of life, being committed to a purpose that is (as Georg Bernhard Shaw writes) "recognized by yourself as a mighty one. Being a force of nature instead of a feverish, selfish little clod of ailments and grievances, complaining that the world will not devote itself to making you happy."

an agreed-upon conscious context). Empowering Communities of Practice around the world – one at a time during online and offline consulting, and also all-at-once-altogether (through distinction-rich articles and videos, presenting at conferences, etc. – is a purpose that we ourselves recognize as ‘a mighty one!’ We invest in cavitating, holding and navigating space for Communities of Practice wherever we can.

These Communities of Practices use the Nonmaterial currencies of Archiarchal Economics, such as Possibility, Clarity, Distinctions, Upgraded Thoughtware, Love, Connection, Empowerment, Transformation or Healing. These are often the currencies through which we are compensated - often in nonlinear and indirect ways, such as having general good fortune, good health, good opportunities, good friends, good ideas for building out Possibility Management gameworlds that Archiarchal Possibilitators can inhabit and then flourish, and so on. This stuff actually works.

We propose an experiment which is: to take your next big step to prepare your circle to shift from Modern Culture to Archiarchy by delivering an unreasonable amount of Emotional Healing Processes, Rage Club, Fear Club, Sadness Club and other ‘learning how to Feel’ spaces to your local and international community. This could be an investment of many wonderful returns.

To strengthen your spaceholding skills for such Feeling Transformational spaces, the next Rage Club Spaceholder Training is coming up on October 30th (more information in the Event section below).
