Jason Cermak really enjoys working on the series; The actors and crew have really found their groove now. Mark Jean once again directing we were all really comfortable and we all had a great fun shooting this installment by: Ruth Hill as a devoted When calling a Heart fan, I'm the one who takes great interest from all the characters, but newcomers to Hope Valley always specifically capture my attention—especially when they're beautiful and talented. So when I discovered who played Dr. Burns in the New Year's Wish special, I was quite intrigued by the brilliance of the spotlight on this dashing actor and much to my delight, I was able to chat with Jason Cermak recently. We discussed his role when it comes to heart, but our conversation is detailed What inspired you to become an actor? I was born in Alberta, Canada, and I grew up on a farm knowing deep down that I wanted to do something related to acting or entertainment, but it just doesn't seem realistic. In my town, you had to do something like working on oil rigs or something like that. I went to college and got a business degree. When I was visiting the Czech Republic, I met Matt Damon when he was filming Bourne's identity. That's when I realized that acting was what I wanted to do, and I had an agent. What attracted you when calling heart and how do you book a role? I was out in Calgary working with Michael J. Landon Jr., the original cast of When Called Heart (WCTH) film. One day, about a month and a half into filming, it just happened that they said it wasn't going to be filmed anymore because they ran out of money. Later I discovered they took what they filmed and put together a film about Hallmark, which became a pre-film tv show. I actually had an audition for about four or five roles in WCTH, but for some reason, I didn't get any of those roles. In fact, I was second in line to Charles in season two, but Marcus Rosner ended up getting that role. In the end, the producers offered me the role of Dr. Burns, and I took it. He is a great character with a lot of potential because he is loyal and has the best intentions. Really, Hallmark suits me well. It's known that I don't swear, and I have good values. I was known as Mr. Hallmark long before he worked for Hallmark. I'm not the one who pays a lot of attention to the stars so on my first day, I ran into Lori Loughlin, but didn't know who she was. He seemed to be in a lot of class and I was wondering if he was a day player or something like that. So, in my naïve way, I went to him and asked: Are you on the show? I can't believe you did this. Honestly, the WCTH cast is great and I love Dr Burns to return to the regular part of the show. The hearties are great and they got my character very well. After all, Hope Valley needs a clinic, right? Let's hope Dr. Burns returns next season. Tell us about your experience of the murder he cooked. I played the one who gets murdered in the film Murder He Baked: Chocolate Chip Cookie Mystery. I was good friends with Lisa Durupt and Toby Levins already and the rest of the cast was just wonderful. Actually, let me tell you a little story about Toby... When I was working on Garage Sale Mystery, I happened to see a shirtless headshot from no one but Toby Levins. As I changed, I went ahead and took a photo of his poster. I then posted how it looked at me getting changed and you can imagine how the fans reacted to it. Of course, Toby was a good sport for nothing. Ali Sweeney had a lot of fun working, but it just so That the day we filmed, he was sick. In fact, we weren't sure if we could continue filming that day. The day was very hot and despite everything, Ali was very hard-working. Soon after filming our scene, Ali went into the bushes and fell ill. When he came back, I asked him, Was my acting that bad? I can't believe you did this. I understand you're in a new Garage sales mystery movie that just wrapped up. What can you tell us about this movie? yes, I am, and I can't tell you much yet. But I got to work with Kevin O'Grady and his part is so fantastic. I'm sure he's found his stride. I loved filming this one and I really hope viewers enjoy it when it aired. It seems that no matter what Hallmark does, it's always quality. They have the highest quality leading players, but in fact at every level they are simply the best. Do you have any other future works you can tell us about? Although I can't say much about it yet, I've been working on what I can't refer to as the Untitled Goldberg/Guarascio/Osborne pilot. I also have a small role in Perfect Pickup, which will probably be available for some time in the next few months. I am a great friend of everyone to that film and it was great to work with them. Right now, I have another role in the works that are completely different from all my Hallmark roles. So, just be sure to stay tuned for updates. Are you planning to direct or write in the near future? I've actually directed a number of movies - shorts and music videos. In fact, I have had the opportunity to direct several music videos, called the Canadian MTV channel. The last short I led, Irregardless, was one of two gangs getting together to fight, but one of the gang leaders is grammar. I really enjoy directing, but I only write off necessity because writing isn't necessarily a passion of mine. What do you like to do in your spare time? I'm the one who really enjoys the outdoors and most things athletic. I like to do snowboarding, rock climbing, hiking-something like that. What are your views on actors and celebrity status? I prefer people who are real in this business and who are not caught up in acting as a celebrity or someone famous. Matthew McConaughey is a good example. When he was working on interstellar, I got to see him because they were filming in Alberta. He refused to use remote houses, so when he had to go, he just went there. Later I got to see him on the red carpet, and it was something to see him make a change from movie star mode. I saw it right in front of my eyes. But the idea arose for me-it's the same guy who took a whiz through the middle of nowhere. He's one of the real people in Hollywood who only gives a big star show when he has to. For a look about this humble, skilful, versatile actress I realized just what a gem she is. He's friendly, down-to-earth, tells him as he is and certainly has a sense of humor. He is the one who is honored to share his works with his fans and the support he has received from the Hearties means an immeasurable amount to him. He is consumed to be authentic and I definitely found him virtuous, kind and gracious.
