

A Tribute to Our Beloved Louisamam

Dear members of the de Bie family, relatives, and dear friends,

"Lives dedicated to love and service never truly end. They continue to live in every heart they have touched, in every smile they have created, and in every blessing they leave behind."

On this day of remembrance, although I am thousands of miles away in India and cannot be with you in person, my heart, the hearts of my family, the entire TRUST India family, and all our Eco Club children are with you in love, prayer, and gratitude.

Today, you have gathered to remember our beloved Louisamam—a truly extraordinary woman whose life was a blessing to so many. We too join you in spirit, remembering not only her warm smile and gentle presence, but also the values she lived every day: compassion, kindness, humility, selfless service, and unconditional love for humanity.

The news of her passing came as a profound shock to all of us. Even today, it is difficult to accept that she is no longer physically among us. Here at TRUST India, we still speak of her as though she has just visited us. Her memories remain alive in every corner of our work, in every child she encouraged, and in every life she helped transform.

For us, Louisamam was never just a friend or a supporter—she became part of our family. She stood beside TRUST India through every stage of our journey, encouraging us with unwavering faith, wisdom, generosity, and love. Together, Louisamam and Hans became an inseparable part of our story from 1998 onwards. Their support, guidance, and friendship have left an everlasting mark on our organization and on the countless children, families, and communities whose lives have been touched through TRUST India.

She shared not only her resources but also her time, her affection, her encouragement, and her genuine concern for every human being she met. Her service to humanity was never for recognition—it came naturally from a heart filled with love and compassion.

Personally, I believe that what has passed away is only her physical body. The beautiful soul that we knew can never perish. She has simply entered another dimension—into eternity. As a sincere practitioner of Yoga and a spiritually evolved soul, I feel her departure was not merely an end, but a peaceful transition. It reminds me of what, in the yogic tradition, is known as Jala Samadhi—a serene union with the Divine. This is my personal reflection, born out of the deep respect I have for the way she lived her life.

Today, I also remember our dear Hans de Bie. Their journey together was one of love, dedication, and selfless service. It brings me great comfort to believe that Louisamam has now reunited with Hans in the eternal realm, where there is no suffering, no pain, and no separation. I believe that death does not separate souls united by love—it only opens the door to eternity. Their earthly journey may have come to an end, but their journey together continues in the Divine.

From that higher realm, I pray that Louisamam and Hans continue to shower their love, blessings, and guidance upon the de Bie family, upon all of us at TRUST India, and upon every child and every life they so lovingly touched. Their love has become a light that will never be extinguished.

Louisamam was one of those rare human beings whose intelligence was matched by humility, whose generosity was matched by simplicity, and whose strength was matched by compassion. She never sought appreciation or recognition. Her greatest joy was to serve others, to bring hope where there was despair, and to uplift those in need. Such souls are truly a gift to humanity.

The children of our Eco Clubs, our staff, volunteers, my family, and every member of TRUST India remember her with immense love and gratitude. Many of our children may never fully realize how much of their education, opportunities, dreams, and brighter future became possible because of the kindness, generosity, and vision of Louisamam and Hans. Yet their legacy lives on—in every smiling child, every educated young person, every family empowered, and every act of kindness inspired by their example.

To the entire de Bie family, please accept our deepest condolences and heartfelt prayers. May God grant each one of you strength, peace, and comfort during this difficult time. May the countless beautiful memories you shared with Louisamam become a source of courage and joy in the years to come.

Though oceans separate us today, our prayers unite us. We bow our heads in profound gratitude for a life so beautifully lived and a heart so generously shared.

You may no longer be visible to our eyes, but you will forever remain present in our hearts.

“May your beautiful soul rest in eternal peace, together with our dear Hans”

May both of you continue to bless your beloved family, all of us at TRUST India, and every child whose life has been transformed through your love.
