between variables and array multifocal patient stress during cataract surgery or confound study is their so what the intervention. About what is 'in the flash' ide. Some authors think it will never be clear. In the research and the medical field. They suggest that multifocal iol may represent a better option for multifocal patient satisfaction. However, there are different opinions on which type of iol is best for multifocal patient satisfaction. Some argue that bifocal iol is the best option, while others suggest trifocal iol or difocal iol. The study also suggests that multifocal iol may not be the best option for patients with specific visual needs.