Many of the credit card offers that appear on the website come from credit card companies from which ThePointsGuy.com receives compensation. This site does not include all credit card companies or all offers available by credit card. Please view our advertising policy page for more information. This site is not available in your country. I did them with my third graders last year and they were a great success. It's nice to see yourself (or anyone else) sitting in a snow globe that really works! You will need: -cardboard -scrapbooking paper -cellophane bag -small image of yourself -glue -tape -markers -scissors -glitter -other sparkling thingsUse white cardboard, cut out the shape of a snowman no larger than 1 in height. Decorate the snowman with buttons and a paper scarf. Take the small photo of your head and glue it on the snowman's head. Add a hat if you want. Put the snowman in the cellophane bag and add glitter and other tin-like things. I also added small perforated circles and stars made of beautiful cards. Take your cardstock card and fold it in half. With a large circular hole, cut out a circle in the paper. This is where the cellophane bag will go. Using scrapbooking paper, cut out a triangle or rectangle to be the basis of your snow. Glue it to the paper cover and cut along the edge of the circle to make it look like the circle is on top of the base. Open the board and place the snow globe inside with the opening facing up. Using adhesive tape, rake the snow inside the board. Be sure to fully rake the opening of the cellophane bag so that no glitter exists. Grab a marker or pen and write your message! Happy Holidays! If you don't like the way the taped cellophane bag appears inside your paper, you can use another piece of cardboard, cut the circle from the center and glue it inside your paper. This will be much nicer, but it is harder to get exactly the right. If you want to do this, I suggest you use the large hole on both pieces of cardboard at the same time so that the hole is in exactly the same place. Last updated december 22, 2020 Making a million dollars is not a Easy. To be honest, it shouldn't even be thought of unless you're okay to be more disciplined than a navy seal for at least three years. Flirting with the idea won't get you anywhere, starting the idea will get you frustrated and going halfway will leave you more frustrated than when you started. So if you're you're to engage in discipline, laser focus, and higher and lower than a roller coaster at Disney World, then let's take it.1. Choose a nicheThis is by far the most important of the whole process on how to make a million dollars. This niche must meet some crucial criteria. Let us look at some of these requirements: it must not have an income ceiling. It must be something that can be climbed to a high level. You have to be an expert in this field (or willing to become one). I write this personally assuming that you will do it full time or that you can devote over 30 hours a week to this hustle and bustle. Here are some ideas: Privately branded products on Amazon Dropshipping on Shopify Affiliate Marketing High-End Consulting Flipping Homes Sell your skills on Fiverr Sell an online course There are tons of roads to make a million dollars, but it must be one that can be scaled back to a huge level. We have to think big, bigger than you ever thought. Think big that people would make fun of you if you told them how big you want to be. Every great entrepreneur started with these thoughts. Remember, someone once had the idea of bottling water and selling it. Can you imagine the reaction when they first told someone? 2. CommitUnder a few, if any, millionaires have ever done so without a commitment and strategic strategy in terms of time. The best way to do this is to watch your schedule and see where you can do a few hours. You will have to work on this idea at least 5 days a week. To give you an idea, my hours are 4:30 am to 7:00 am every morning before I wake up 3 and 5 years old. Does it suck some mornings? You bet. But for me, every sacrifice is worth it. Making a million dollars is a noble goal, and if you think I'm going to lie to you and say you can do it without working harder than you've ever had, you're reading the wrong article.3. Become an expertBefore you jump in, let me give you some advice. This is one of the places I failed miserably when I started. Learn and then learn a little more. But isn't it okay to learn as you go? You bet! The thing is, you need to have more knowledge of the average Joe. Passion, unfortunately, does not mean competence. People can smell a fake from a mile away and your experience will be no different. The best way to become an expert is to find a mentor who has been successful in your niche. I am a great believer in investing in yourself and therefore, do not be afraid to attend paid conferences, seminars or even pay for a mind. Knowledge is really power, and when you're trying to make a million dollars, you need all the power you can get.4. LaunchParare le it's the scariest part. What if it fails? What if my friends make fun of me? What if...?. Self-confidence and strategy are the keys here. Talk to any entrepreneur who's made a million dollars: there's no one out there who can say they haven't had times where to stop. There were times when they were crying, they were frustrated, they wanted to wave the white flag, I bet they didn't because they believed in themselves and had a strategy. YOU NEED TO TRUST THE PROCESS. Here are about 7 solid launch strategies to give you confidence and a strong increase in sales and accelerate your path to a million dollars. Get 100 reviews before launching. Get 5 video testimonials that talk to you or your product. Have 3 influencers committed to sharing your product or service on launch day. Capture every email address you can and send them a bimonthly email. Give a predetermined amount of products/services in exchange for shares on social media. Run a paid ad campaign for your launch. (FB and Google are the best bang for your dollar). When step 6 is complete, start over step 1 and repeat. 5. The dream customerFrom my experience, this is where most people hang hats. We were just on top of the world and more excited than a baby on Christmas Eve. We launched, worked for months, and finally put our product/service into the world just to listen to crickets. This is where we separate the boys from the men, as they would say. Most likely you have a good product/service, but it is not reaching the customer of your dreams. Let me explain. Imagine selling makeup. It's the most beautiful make-up anyone's ever looked at. It has a fair price, its packaging is stellar and its logo is the knees of the bee. You start and follow the launch steps as well. But you can't identify the customer of your dreams alias who buys makeup. So instead of 18- to 35-year-old women seeing your product, it's littered with demographics that have no interest in makeup. This makes you think that your product is defective and having to go back to point 1 when really, you have a marketing problem, not a product issue. Once you have reviews and testimonials, it is imperative that you now mire your product/service to what many would call the customer of your dreams. Here are some ways you can find yourself in front of the customer of your dreams: learn Pinterest by taking Pinterest Academy. Take Twitter flight school. Take part in the lessons on Google Garage. Discover Fb ads through Facebook Blueprint. Find Instagram/TikTok influencers to promote your brand that already has your dream customers as followers. 6. Manage your money wellThe whole American dream can go to hell in a basket by hand very quickly if you don't manage your profits well. We have seen many before us who have spent their profits without any structure. There's a difference between making a million and structure your funds to become a millionaire. If you have come to this step, then you are above the curve and have a big problem to solve. How will you structure your profits? What percentage will you save? How much are you going to pay? How much will you put into marketing? There are a plethora of questions you need to Through. The good thing is that now you have a problem that most people would die to have. You have an abundance of income and need to know how to structure it. I highly recommend paying you a fixed salary regardless of your profits. You can always give yourself an end-of-year bonus. I would also recommend looking for a CPA and making sure you make the most of your tax advantage potential.7. Find balanceThe whole site and its premise are called Lifehack. Lifehack is not going to work 100 hours a week and be no happy. As far as I know, it is exactly the opposite. It is a mindset of winning in life being efficient and successful in all areas of life. Getting a million dollars won't give the deep satisfaction you've always wanted. The journey, however, can and will fill that satisfaction if you can find your passion along the way. Many people find fulfillment in the journey, but very few will ever find realization in money. To go into this further, let me say this. I know many millionaires who could afford to stop working today and live a more comfortable life than many of us would have dreamed. So why don't they? That's why. It's never really about money: it's about the trip, it's about the hustle and bustle, it's about being a winner. Money only come with those things. Unfortunately, this is why very few ever do this feat. They don't like grinding. They can't stand the thrill roller coaster it takes to make a million dollars. In conclusion, many entrepreneurs will try to make a million dollars, and many will be successful. Following this picture will not be a silver bullet, but it will be a great starting point in your journey of financial freedom and entrepreneurship. I wish you luck!
