Pokemon diamond and pearl 3 starters

In Bulbapedia, a community-focused Pokémon encyclopedia. Chimcha (Japanese: Hikozarru) is an infertile Pokémon introduced in Generation IV. It evolves from level 14 to Monferno and from level 36 to Infernepe. Along with Kurtvhi and Peep Top, Chimcha is one of Shinno's three starter Pokémon available at the beginning of Pokemon Diamonds, Pearls and Platinum.
Biology
Sleeping Chimcha - The lack of flame chiming is a bipedal Pokémon resembling a chimpanzee. The fur is mainly shades of orange, but the face, outer ear, lower back, hands and feet are bright yellow. At the back is a small, round red patch, usually obscured by flames caused by burning gas in the stomach. These flames go outside when you sleep, and when you get sick, they burn weakly. The ears are small compared to the size of the head and ㅁ inside. It has two pointed teeth on its upper jaw. The chimcha has red marks on his hands with red marks that almost surround his eyes, a swirling symbol on his chest, and five fingers with three toes on his feet. It has swirling sentences of hair on the head. Being very agile, it is able to climb the rocky shelves of the high mountains where it lives.

Origin chit tea appears based on young chimpanzees. However, the markings on the back without flames seem to indicate more of a cross between a chimpanzee and a young baboon. The name origin chimkar is a combination of chimp and charcoal or charcoal (image). Hikozeru is a combination of Hikozeru (fire), 猿 (child), and Hiroshi Saroo (monkey). Zaru is also used to describe monkeys.
