Funeral benefits available include a grave in one of 136 national cemeteries with available space, opening and closing of the grave, perpetual care, a government headstone or marker, a funeral flag, and a presidential commemorative certificate, free of charge to the family. Some veterans may also be eligible to Allowances. Cremated remains are buried or inurned in national cemeteries in the same manner and with the same honors as coffin remains. For a list of national cemeteries, visit the Department of Veterans Affairs website. Eligibility for burial in a national cemetery Veterans and members of the armed forces who die on active duty are eligible for burial in one of the VA's 135 national cemeteries. An eligible Veteran must have been released or separated from active service under non-disgraceful conditions and have completed the required period of service. An American citizen who served in the armed forces of an allied government with the United States in a war may also be eligible. Spouses and dependent minor children of eligible veterans and members of the armed forces may also be buried in a national cemetery. The surviving spouse of an eligible veteran who married a non-veteran prior to October 31, 1990 and whose remarriage was terminated by death or divorce before or on that date is eligible for burial in a national cemetery. However, the surviving spouse of an eligible veteran who married a non-veteran before October 31, 1990 and whose remarriage was still intact on or date is not eligible for burial in a national cemetery. A surviving spouse who marries a non-veteran after October 31, 1990 is not eligible for burial in a national cemetery. Requesting burial in a national cemetery is based on military service. A copy of an official military discharge document with an official seal or other supporting documentation is usually sufficient to determine eligibility for burial. The VA now allows veterans to know their eligibility for burial in a national cemetery going before the time of need. The VA calls this pre-need for determination. To apply, complete and submit a VA 40-10007 form to the VA. This significantly reduces stress on surviving family members. Applicants may indicate a preference for a national cemetery going on the application form, but a prior determination of eligibility requirements does not guarantee burial in a specific VA national cemetery or cemetery. VA assigns graves in cemeteries with available space once death has taken place and burial is planned. At the time of need, the next of kin, funeral home or other representative responsible for the final arrangements should contact the Office cemeteries planning at 800-535-1117 to request burial. If the Veteran has not completed a pre-need application prior to death, survivors or funeral directors can request burial in a national cemetery by faxing eligibility documents to 866-900-6417 or by scanning and emailing the information to the ANC. Scheduling@va.gov, survivors or funeral directors can also call the VA at 800-535-1117. Arlington National Cemetery Arlington National Cemetery, which is under the jurisdiction of the is more limited than other national cemeteries. Eligibility for burial of cremated remains in the Arlington Columbarium is the same as eligibility for burial in VA national cemeteries. For information on Arlington burials, please email the Superintendent, Arlington National Cemetery, Arlington, VA 22211, or call 877-907-8585. Department of the Interior, State Veteran Cemeteries Eligibility criteria similar to eligibility for VA National Cemetery apply to the two active national cemeteries administered by the Department of the Interior: Andersonville National Cemetery in Georgia and Andrew Johnson National Cemetery in Tennessee. Veterans' cemeteries are operated by many states. Visit our State Veteran Benefits page for more information on specific cemeteries for state veterans. Family pass holders can visit, but must have face coverings. The cemetery is temporarily open between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Arlington National Cemetery serves as a cemetery and memorial to people of National Importance in America, including presidents, Supreme Court justices and countless military heroes. The cemetery was established during the Civil War as a last resting place for Union soldiers on about 200 acres of Mary Custis Lee's 1100 acre Arlington estate. The property has been expanded over the years to include more than 624 acres of cemeteries with more than 400,000 U.S. military personnel. Each year, more than three million people visit Arlington, attend funeral services and special ceremonies to honour veterans and historical figures. The cemetery is located across the Potomac River from Washington, D.C. to the west end of the Memorial Bridge in Arlington, Virginia. However, it is quite easy to access from anywhere in the city using a variety of transportation methods, including walking and driving. To get to the cemetery, take the subway to Arlington National Cemetery Station; Take the National Mall express bus; or walk or cycle across the Memorial Bridge. The cemetery is also a stop on most sightseeing tours of Washington, D.C., there is a large parking garage with plenty of space if you want to drive (rates are only $2 an hour). Because Arlington National Cemetery is the last resting place for family members and heroes, it is open every day throughout the year, including at Christmas and other major holidays. However, schedules vary slightly depending on the season: April to September: 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. from October to March: 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Cemetery Visitor Centre is a good place to start visit where you'll find maps, guides, exhibitions, a bookstore and toilets. You can walk on the field on your own or take the interpretive tour, but be sure to leave several hours to explore the patterns and make sure you wear comfortable walking shoes. Stops include Kennedy Tombs, the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier (Changing Guard), and Arlington House (Robert E. Lee Memorial). Driving in the cemetery is only permitted for visitors with disabilities and those attending a funeral or visiting a private grave, and a special permit is required. Peter Unger/Getty Images Visit famous graveites: Among the notable Americans buried here are Presidents William Howard Taft and John F. Kennedy, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, and Robert Kennedy. See the Monuments and Memorials: Among the dozens of memorials on the property are the Coast Guard Memorial, the Space Shuttle Challenger Memorial, Hispano-American War Memorial, the USS Maine Memorial and many more. Attend a special event: Memorial services are held in the Arlington National Amphitheatre on Easter, Memorial Day and Veterans Day and are sponsored by the U.S. Army Military District in Washington. Many military organizations hold other annual memorial services throughout the year. More than four million people visit the cemetery each year and about 27-30 funerals at the cemetery are held here every day. Visit the Women in Military Service for America Memorial: This is the main entrance, also known as The Memorial Gate, and houses a visitor center that houses special exhibits that change periodically. Watch the Changing Of the Guard: The Tomb of the Unknown, also known as the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, stands on a hill overlooking Washington, DC. The tomb was dedicated in 1921 and contains the remains of soldiers from World War I, World War II, Korea and Vietnam. The tomb is kept 24 hours a day and every hour (every half hour in the summer) there is a change of the guard ceremony with a special walk and salute. Arlington House Tower: The former home of Robert E. Lee and his family is located on a hill, offering one of the best views of Washington, DC. George Washington Parke Custis, Lee's father-in-law, built the house as his own home as well as a memorial to George Washington, his grandfather-in-law. Arlington House is now preserved as a memorial to Robert E. Lee, who helped heal the nation after the Civil War. Arlington House is temporarily closed until the fall of 2019. Visitors are encouraged to visit Arlington House Temporary Visitor Center currently located in the Women's Memorial. Take a Shuttle to visit a grave: If you have a family member buried in the cemetery or want to visit a particular famous resting place, you can take a free shuttle exactly to the site where you want to pay tribute. Shuttles depart from the visitor centre and must be at the front desk there. In 2013, Arlington National Cemetery unveiled the first major upgrade to historical exhibitions in more than 20 years. The renovated Welcome Center now features information on Arlington's annual rituals and military tradition that honor our veterans, helping visitors remember key historical events and encouraging guests to explore the 624 acres of this national sanctuary. The upgrade also included six panels that provide an overview of the cemetery; The history of the Arlington House estate; a Freedman's Village history; the evolution of becoming the national cemetery depicted in a vertical glass panel; a retrospective of the JFK procession; and a ritual panel describing how the army performs funerals. However, the cornerstone of the new exhibitions of 2013 was a life-size statue of a bugle. Staff Sergeant Jesse Tubb, who is a bugle in the U.S. Army band, Pershing's Own, which served as a model for the statue. In addition, Arlington National Cemetery is in the process of renovating the historic Arlington House and preserving the exterior of the Memorial Amphitheatre. Arlington House is expected to reopen in January 2020. Thank you for let us know! Know!
