Robert Pattinson in the film The Devil all the time. Glen Wilson/Netflix Netflix has given us an idea of what could be one of their main Oscar contenders with the trailer For The Devil all the time, released on Thursday. Based on Donald Ray Pollock's 2011 novel, the story takes place in post-World War II southern Ohio and West Virginia and follows a group of troubled people as their lives intertwine. From acclaimed director Antonio Campos, the film also includes an all-star cast comprised of Tom Holland, Robert Pattinson, Hayley Bennett, Bill Skarsgard, Riley Keoo, Sebastian Stan, and more. Here we look at the all-star movie and the characters they play: The Devil all the time launches on Netflix on September 16. Tom Holland in the movie The Devil all the time. Netflix Although Pollock's story touches on many characters, he always returns to Arvin Russell. Raised to be a good man, he had a troubled childhood as he saw his mother, Charlotte (Hayley Bennett), die of cancer, and his father, Willard (Bill Skarsgard), suffers from PTSD after serving in World War II. Now, living with her grandmother and befriendng Leno (Eliza Scanlen), an orphan who lives with her, it seems arvin has peace. It's until preacher Preston Teagardin (Robert Pattinson) comes to town. Holland is best known for his role as Peter Parker/Spider-Man in the Marvel Cinematic Universe, but it certainly looks like a role that will show his dramatic chops. The Devil is an all-time director antonio Campos. For years Campos has been a fixture on the independent film scene as a director and producer. One of his first feature films, Afterschool, starring Ezra Miller as a troubled schoolboy, received his first major notice. Since then, he has made such famous films as Simon the Killer and Christina. Most recently, he was the executive producer and director of the series Sinner. To watch The Devil all the time you need to subscribe to a Netflix subscription. It's usually free, and you get emails and texts about upcoming films looking for background artists, says Christine Nelson, background casting director for Lee Genick/Sylvia Fay and Associates casting. You will confirm if you are available and be able to talk to the casting directors from there. iStock/SquaredpixelsMake is sure you're putting out the exact image. You don't need to splurge on a professional portrait, but make sure The photo you attach to your profile is current. Go on on candid photos, or even selfies. Something that looks like you want to represent yourself, says Nelson. It's your marketing tool. Anyone can dress down, so wear a suit or a beautiful dress to put your best self out there. Try these tricks to make yourself look better in photos. iStock/Petar ChernayevIf you are particularly excited about the opportunity to be a statuette in some film, pick up the phone and introduce yourself to the casting director. Sometimes they'll call and say, I just want you to know who I am. But if the person on the other line is short with you, take a hint-some don't want to bother, and you better wait to hear the answer, warns Nelson. You want to use these 16 secret habits of naturally charming people. iStock/BraunS People will appear 15-30 minutes late and think it's OK because they probably won't be ready to shoot, but that's not the case, Nelson says. They are usually good oil machines and ready to go. Make sure you're there on call time. If the car has to pick you up, it will leave without you if you are late. iStock/fotostormDon't agree to appear in a movie for which you don't have a wardrobe. Period pieces often provide costumes for background artists, but if you promise to dress like a lawyer and show up with jeans, there's a good chance that you'll be sent home, says Nelson. Not sure what outfit you meant is acceptable? Take a pair of extra shirts and another skirt or a pair of pants, so you have options. It's best to bring a good combination as a courtesy to make the wardrobe happy, says Nelson. iStock/Rawpixel-LtdEven, although you are in the background, that just rolled out of bed look not going to fly. If you show up with clothes all wrinkled in your bag, you don't present yourself in a good light, says Nelson. The show is looking just as pressed and polished to be a movie extra as you would at any other job. Avoid these outfit bugs that make you look dirty. iStock/bjones27Films doesn't necessarily shoot to match the season, so keep in mind that your costume may not match the real-life temperature. Sometimes they are set in winter in summer or summer in winter, Nelson says. If you can't handle off-season outfits, you can wait for another role. iStock/halbergmanMovie often operates a tight ship, and you'll probably need two forms of photo ID when you arrive. If you don't have it, you can't work, Nelson says. Leave valuables at home too so as not to lose them when you take pictures, she says. iStock/Martin DimitrovYou will probably have to sign a non-disclosure agreement promising not to share what you see Stage. Turn off your phone when the cameras are rolling, and resist the temptation to get the chance to post what you see on social social With technology, everyone has a phone, which can sometimes be bad, says Nelson. No one wants their plot to come out. Also, you should make sure that you listen to any instructions the assistant director gives extras, which is tough if you are looking at your phone. iStock/Haider YousufNo no matter how big a fan you are, don't approach the actors. They are in the mode of what they do and that's the worst thing extras can do, Nelson says. Even if some actors will happily sign an autograph, others may get annoyed and you might end up getting kicked off the set. These are the 22 best snippets of the trivia movie. In fact, the film's aesthetics are so different that members of the cast are almost unrecognizable from their period clothes. Here, take a look at what they really look like compared to their iconic characters. 1 of 18 Joanne Froggatt As Lady Mary's devoted maid Anna, Joanne Froggatt is rarely seen without her black dress and her hair in a bun, but in real life, the actress isn't afraid to experiment with color on the red carpet. 2 of Harry Hayden-Paton's 18 Harry Hayden-Paton looks dapper, no matter what year it is, but at events in 2019, he changes his Downton Abbey character's statement making ascot for a classic bowtie. 3 of Michelle Dockery's 18 Even off-camera Michelle Dockery can't resist a pretty blue ball gown, albeit one with modern details. 4 out of 18 Jim Carter Jim Carter wardrobe may differ from Mr. Carson, but his eyebrows are impressive, regardless of the length of time. 5 out of 18 Sophie McSher from the kitchen, Daisy cleans beautifully. In Downton Abbey, Sophie McSher plays an assistant cook who has ambitions to improve his position in the world, but in 2019, McSher prefers the more glamorous aesthetic of Daisy's worn apron. 7 out of 18 9 of Laura Carmichael Off Downton Abbey set, Laura Carmichael keeps things casual, without hats or gloves talking. 10 of Hugh Bonneville's 18 Lord Grantham may hold on to tradition, but Hugh Bonneville is one to take fashion risks as it is a striking purple ensemble. 11 of 18 Allen Leach actor who plays Tom Branson sets high expectations for the film Downton Abbey. He said the film is a big, epic story that's definitely going to fill the big screen. 12 of Leslie Nicole's 18 Meanwhile, Leslie Nicol, who plays Mrs. Patmore promised that the film would be very beautiful and very cinematic in addition to being very dramatic. We can't wait! 13 of Brendan Coyle's 18 After years of trouble, Mr Bates and Anna finally found a bit of happiness at the end of the Downton Abbey television series. We keep our fingers crossed, which is still the case in the movie. 14 of Phyllis Logan's 18 total cast. Phyllis Logan may be the actor who looks the least like her character, Mrs. Hughes. 15 of Elizabeth McGovern's 18 whether Elizabeth McGovern portrays Lady Cora in the 1920s, or rocking with her band in 2019, she loves a bold berry-colored lip. 16 of Penelope Wilton's 18 These two photos prove that Wilton's signature penelope is a silver-gray color, no matter what era it is in. 17 of Kevin Doyle's 18 It's hard to imagine Mr. Molsley outside the uniform of his footman, but on the red carpet, actor Kevin Doyle can sometimes be seen without a tie. 18 from Michael Fox Much, like his fellow footman Kevin Doyal, Michael Fox prefers a more casual ensemble when he doesn't wear his official Downton Abbey livery.
