but in his heart. The present place gave him such wonderful memories that he cherishes them, even when he is among the roads and sidewalks of the city. His desire to escape to Innisfree so much that his thoughts overpowered him. Thus, the state of mind of the poet is Innisfree itself, which acts as a symbol of peaceful existence among nature. No 6. Suppose you're a poet V.B. Yeats and achieved their dream - Island Innisfree. Write a diary entry in about 150 words expressing your real experience and emotions. In your diary entry, you must say how you felt immediately, how you landed on the island, what sights and sounds you experienced there, what impact they had on you Ans:- (Day and date) (Time) Dear Diary I is very glad that my dream to return to the island of Innisfree has been fulfilled. I have indeed reached this idyllic world far from the disturbing and hectic life of London. My first glimpse of the island was very fulfilling. When I landed on a green, herbaceous place, I breathed in the fragrant, refreshing air. I felt like I was in some fabulous country. I ran, enjoying the view of the thick green trees, and then sat down to bask in the brilliant sunlight. The rustle of leaves, the chirping of birds and the beautiful shades of flowers left me fascinated. I heard soft music waves that, reflecting sunlight, looked very nice as they hit the shore and made ripples. I took a nap on the open ridge. In the evening, linnets, fluttering wings in the sky, were a spectacular sight. Several crickets were sung from under the rock. Today I'm going to sleep under the stars, and tomorrow I'm going to build a cottage for myself. Everything on this island seems to be heavenly. Every moment spent here is a blessing. When I came here, I realized that the race for money would never give me any pleasure. The environment here is full of contentment and happiness. I wish I could have come here sooner. But better late than never! (W.B.) Q7. Life in the city is fast and hectic. However, people prefer to live in the city. Why? Ans. Urban life is fast and hectic.
