Helping Your Teenager Make a Good Career Decision

Worried about what your son or daughter is going to do for a career? Wonder what they will do when they finish school? Feel they have no concrete answers when you ask them? Worry they are going to drift & miss out somehow? Finished school but no plans in place? Want to help them but don't know how?

This seminar/talk will help you support your teenager make a better more effective career decision. Making a career decision is not easy at all - it is a very complex process yet somehow we think it is all very simple & they will 'figure it out' over time. With the increasing costs of tertiary education & the multitude of earn-as-you-learn options, the whole process is more confusing than ever for young people & especially parents & guardians.

Russell Booth an experienced & well-respected career professional will explain what you need to know as a parent/guardian to understand what young people are thinking, the influences on their decisions & ways you can help.

It covers understanding the development of the brain in those teenage & young adult years not only the physical & neurological changes but also the impact on their thinking & their decisions.

The workshop also covers understanding how & when young people develop a sense of purpose which underpins our motivation for everything we enjoy in life including our work & careers. It will show the link between purpose, interests, skills & achievements & careers.

Finally it will give you some ideas & strategies to use to help any young person you care about when making a decision about their future. By the end of the session you should have a better understanding of what a young person is thinking & why & ways to help them make better decisions about their careers.

Russell Booth has over 20yrs experience in the careers field mainly in NZ but also in the UK. He runs his own business Career Change Ltd in Hawke's Bay & Auckland & has worked successfully with many young clients. He has just finished working at the ASB Careers Centre at the Uni of Auckland as a Career Consultant. Check out his facebook page Career Change's

Let's Talk about the Weather..Aotearoa (until 2 June)

Artist Kjelsty Hanson notes the skies of Aotearoa as enchanting & so changeable, & as such they are her inspiration for this series of oil paintings on paper. The other images in this collection are photographs of her skillfully crafted sculptures. They too talk of the weather in some way & our link to nature.

There will be a meet the artist evening (with music from Glenn Kastrinos & Roger Stonehouse) on May 25th at 6pm. Hastings Community Arts Centre, Russell St South, Hastings 9.30am – 4.00pm (Mon – Fri), 10.00am – 2.00pm (Sat)

Matt Arbuckle: Low Cloud (until 2 June)

Parlour Projects is honoured to present Matt Arbuckle: Low Cloud, the artist's first solo exhibition with the gallery. The exhibition presents 8 new paintings by the Auckland-born Melbourne-based artist.

In Low Cloud Arbuckle looks to artefacts of the digital world – Wifi, bluetooth, radio, routers, satellites, hotspots & modems – to continue his exploration of space. Using colour, shapes, lines & textures he creates, manipulates, organises & reorganises expanses within the material confines of the painted surface. They are at once an abstract representation of the sublime nature of space as they are a landscape, containing expanses, volumes & voids within their own unique world.

An essay by Danae Valenza will accompany the exhibition. For further info, images or enquiries email sophie@parlourprojects.com or call 021 450 279.

Parlour Projects, 306 Eastbourne St East, Hastings 10.00am – 3.00pm Wed-Sat

John Staniford was born in 1947 in Richmond, Surrey UK. He emigrated to NZ in 1961 & in 1965-67 studied at Elam School of Fine Arts, Auckland.

In the 1970's John established a screen printing business in Auckland while continuing to paint..
