Epic quests are followed by the journeys of several different heroes. As you play through story-based quests, the protagonist's heroes will grow. When you start the Epic quest, you'll get a level-2 hero instantly; Dr. Strange in The Sorcerer Supreme, Wolverine in the X-Men Uprising, Deadpool in X-Force, Mr. Fantastic in the First Family or Beta Ray Bill in the Galactic Imperative. If you don’t have it yet you are no closer to receiving it. This is the most draconian realization of the random generation of chi series in that the chances are ridiculously long and missing nothing. You can play for years and never get it while others might get it on the first try. This takes away the player’s agency without any goals. The same average time before completion could be realized through a process that allows the player to make steady or even inconsistent progress by keeping the agency rather than the current situation where a player who does not still know they are no closer.
