Photo (c) hetmanstock2 - FotoliaWhile exercise is important, nutritionists often point out that limiting daily calories, and consuming the right types of calories, is more important in efforts to reduce obesity. Food and beverage companies were sometimes suspected of promoting exercise-related research in order to focus on calorie intake. However, Dr Pepper Snapple conducted a survey that he says shows children are not getting as much open playing time as they once did. The findings of the 2017 Game Status Survey showed that screens and graphics are key culprits of the current lack of active play among children and adolescents. Preference technology To make room around outdoors, a growing number of children across the country are opting to be plugged into the game during their downtime. Televisions, phones, computers and other electronic devices appear to be in the spotlight during playback; About 80% of children consider the game part of game time, according to the study. At weekends, neo-active play is the free time filler of choice for many kids. While the active game increases by just one hour from weekday to weekend, screen time sees a sharp rise in popularity when the weekend rolls, jumping from 4.8 hours to 8.4 hours per day. So what keeps children from playing actively? Many parents believe that their children's schedules can hold them back. Busy barrier schedules Nearly 7 out of 10 parents surveyed believes their child's jam-packed schedule was a key factor in keeping them from active work. Children also seem to have a time for a lighter workload. More than 50 percent of respondents from teens said they would like to have more time to be active and play sports. Children should be physically active for at least one hour a day, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). Parents can encourage their children to put down devices and get active by setting a positive example of themselves. Priority play can be as simple as making physical activity a part of your family's daily life. By taking family walks or playing active games together are just a few ways parents can help eliminate game deficits. While there are many ways to get ahead in life, few are as profitable as making more money. By increasing your income over time, you can boost your cash savings rate, save more money for retirement, and even allow a splurge once in a time. Ready to come to work? And if having more money makes you feel safer, you'll probably sleep better at night, too. Of course, it's not always increase your income. Your employer may hate giving raises, for example, or maybe overtime at work has become scarce. If so, you may need to pick up a part-time job, start a side vanity from home, or look for unorthodox ways money in your spare time. 13 Best Review Sites for Money in 2020 If you have little time and is looking for how to make money quickly, one of the easiest ways with online survey sites. While payouts can vary, these survey companies allow you to make money just for answering questions, browsing the internet, and more. Also, unlike part-time work with strict hours and a standard commute, you can complete surveys during your actual free time - at night when the kids are in bed, early in the morning before work, or while watching TV. And if you're worried about delineating sketchy sites and legitimate sites, don't worry. I took the time to research and consider the good, the bad and the shady to present you with the best survey sites that could make you money in 2020. The Junkie Review Junkie review makes it quick and easy to go into reviewing the game. According to their websites, they say they are the most popular place on the internet to earn cash and rewards for sharing their thoughts, while this may not be technically true, they are one of the largest survey sites out there. They were launched in 2005 (which is pretty old for a survey site) and they have over 1,000,000 members. Survey Junkie uses a points system for its rewards. For every poll you do, you'll get 50 to 450 points. 100 points is $1. As you can read in my Review junkie survey, they are very honest about how much you will do, unlike some other competitors. They clearly say on their website, you don't get rich taking surveys. You can cash your points either through PayPal or with a gift card. If you request payment through PayPal, and it can take up to 24 hours, but in most cases it is immediate. Compared to other sites out there, this is a huge advantage. Some companies and websites can make you wait days or even weeks. Swagbucks Swagbucks was one of the first paid survey sites to appear online, but it has grown to offer more options and more interesting ways to make money every year. With Swagbucks, you'll earn points for shopping online, watch videos, search the web, and answer polls. When it comes to redeeming your points, a wide range of gift cards are some of the best options on the Swagbucks website. If doing surveys for gift cards is not your thing, you can also redeem your points for PayPal cash. Read more in my review of Swagbucks. Subscribe to Swagbucks is easy and, best of all, it's free! If you want to see all the different ways to make money with Swagbucks Inbox dollars with mailbox dollars, you will earn money for a range of activities. In the To receive rewards for filling out surveys and questionnaires, you can also get money to surf the web, play games, print grocery coupons, and shop online. Best of all, signing up is completely free! If you use Site regularly, usually you can earn up to $20 or $30 per month for various activities. Also, you'll get a $5.00 loan just to sign up! They claim to have now paid more than $57 million in cash rewards. Find out more in my InboxDollars review. Ipsos iSay iSay is not the most popular survey site out there, but it should be under consideration when you are looking for a place to make some extra money to spend to share your opinion. In most cases, iSay is identical to other sites on the list. One thing that sets them apart is the predictor's poll. If you've been to a survey site before, you know one of the most frustrating things is to get into a survey, answer a few questions and then get kicked out for not qualifying. If this happens to iSay, you are asked about predicting surveys. These are questions like: Have you ever been abroad? And you have to guess what percentage of people said yes. The closer you are to the right answer: the more likely you are to win the prize draw. How much are you going to earn with iSay? Their rewards are on par with other survey sites out there, and similarly, the amount you get paid will vary depending on the duration of the survey. You will need to accumulate at least 500 points (equal to $5) before you can request a pay payment from PayPal or transfer money to a gift card. Read more in my iSay review. LifePoints Formerly MySurvey, LifePoints is actually an adaptation of the program that was launched back in 1946. It started as an organization of the National Family Opinion, which used to send surveys by mail. In 2001 they entered the digital age and now they are one of the best survey sites around. According to the site, they have issued more than $15,000,000 in awards to members. With LifePoints, your opinion is going to Lightspeed Research, a company that provides research-based survey solutions for businesses using consumer data. The rewards are on the same level (or better than some) with most other sites. They offer $0.50 to $1.25 for each survey you complete, with shorter surveys only taking about 5 minutes to complete. If you want to cash out, you'll have to save $10, which is less than some other sites, and you'll be able to get your money through a check, PayPal, Amazon gift card, or more than 60 other gift card options. Vindale Research Vindale Research won't be the highest paid survey site, but that doesn't mean you should automatically eliminate it. This is a great addition to your survey sites and can help you earn a couple of extra dollars each month. Vindale Research one of the oldest survey sites out there, which means the company knows what they are doing. For each survey, you get anywhere from $1 to $5, which is not bad money on time that you will invest. Obviously, what more more eat, the more you get paid. The company also offers product estimates that you will earn more money for (because they are more time consuming). They will give you a product or service and you will be required to write an honest review on it. Pinecone Research Pinecone Research works in the same way as other paid survey sites. Once you register, you will earn points for every survey you complete. As an added bonus, the answers you give during surveys will help you learn about new products before they hit the market and influence their respective marketing campaigns. And once you start racking up points, you can redeem them for cash or prizes. While you have many options when it comes to paying off your points, Pinecone Research is also one of the few online survey sites that will actually send you a check in the mail rather than making you redeem for gift cards or goods. Global Market Trials Global Test Market is one of the rare survey sites that has received accreditation from BBB. They are one of the most diverse survey sites that include themes of anything from cars to movies. As with other polling sites, every time you complete one of the surveys, you'll get between 35-250 points, which is about $1.50 to $1.75 per poll. Once you collect enough money to pay out (which you will have to save at least $50), you will have several different options to get your money. The global testing market will pay you through a check, through your PayPal account, or redeem it for gift cards. In addition to getting points for each survey, you will also be entered into monthly money drawings. Of course, there is no guarantee, but it is a good additional incentive. ePoll Market Research One of the lesser known sites of the survey is ePoll Market Research. The company was founded in 1997 and has helped pave the way for hundreds of different online survey sites that we enjoy today. While there are no clear guidelines, ePoll surveys tend to revolve around the media and entertainment businesses. So young shooting takers and TV/movie watchers probably enjoy ePoll more than some other demographic. With ePoll, you may be required to watch a commercial, or even a TV episode, and then answer questions about it on a poll. In fact, in rare cases, ePoll will send a movie or TV show for you to watch at home and then review the site. These features are rare, but are a good added benefit of using the site. Most polls take about 10-15 minutes, not counting that you need to watch the view you need, if any. American Consumer Opinion While it may be hard to believe, first, American consumer opinion will pay you real, actual money to share your opinion and complete online surveys. Once you join their online opinion panel, you will be asked opinions about new products that you have tried, check out new advertising campaigns, and tell companies what you think about their marketing methods and slogans. Payments from American consumer opinion vary, but your payout will come in the form of points that you can redeem for cash. You can also get cash through PayPal if you want, and ransoms start at 1000 points or $10. Pro Opinion with Pro Opinion, you will get money to answer questions in your area of expertise. In addition, you will provide valuable research that is used to create expert responses and articles on the Pro Opinion website. Once you sign up, you'll receive interviews on various topics and products by email. Once you complete these surveys and create a cache of points, you can redeem them for cash through PayPal, purchases made through Amazon.com, or gift cards for various retailers. As an alternative offer, you can even redeem your rewards as a donation to the Red Cross. To get started, you will need to offer quite a lot of personal data, including your gender, home address, date of birth, employment status, level of education and family income. After that, however, you will match surveys that line up with your individual strengths and existing wealth of knowledge. Interested in getting an additional education? Sign up with Pro Opinion here. Harris Poll Online As an American Consumer Opinion, Harris Online Poll offers cash incentives for people who are willing to log in regularly and fill out online surveys and questionnaires. Once you join, you will start earning rewards for every poll you take. Once you earn enough reward points, you can turn them into purchases made on websites like Amazon, iTunes, Home Depot and Walmart. Conversely, you can also include your points for movies, books, and homewares ordered directly from the Harris Poll website. In addition, you will be put in a $10,000 tote every time you complete the survey. While exact payouts per survey are not advertised and can vary quite a bit anyway, Harris Online Poll can join and rewards can be lucrative if you use the website often enough. Wonder Unlike other paid survey sites on this list, Wonder will actually hire you to conduct independent research on a wide range of topics. In this sense, Wonder offers a lot more part-time than the side hustle you can complete in your spare time. If you meet their criteria and get a job, you will conduct expert research on anything from historical events to government laws and regulations. In turn, this used by professionals who pay to use this service. Revenues vary greatly depending on your skill level and the amount of time you spend searching for important details of your customers. However, it's a great way to make some money online and from the comfort of your own home. How to get most of the best internet sites survey the charm charm Free money can be hard to get away from, especially if you can earn that money by just clicking around on the internet several times a day. However, there are many ways to maximize the amount of money, goods and gift cards you earn over time. Here are some tips that can help: Subscribe to every legitimate online survey site you can find. While you can make money from any of these sites quite easily, the amount of money you can earn from each can be limited. If you feel comfortable giving, this is a good indicator that they are up to nothing good. Make sure to read the reviews and follow the research to make sure the website is legitimate before you start using them. If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is. Set aside time to complete the polls every day. If you feel that you don't have time to complete surveys, you are not alone. Most of us live busy lives and it can be hard to keep up, let alone take on the new side of the fuss. However, if you watch TV every day, then you have plenty of time to complete the polls online. Just turn on your favorite show and a full review of the questions during commercial breaks. If you like a quiet night time, it's also a great time to earn extra money by searching the web or completing a few online surveys while you're vacationing. The best online survey sites will reward you for everything from searching the web to watching targeted videos, opening emails, completing surveys, and giving your honest opinions about products and services. But to get your hands on that free and easy money, you have to sign up first! Have you ever made money through an online survey site? Why or why not? Not?
