The choice of how to do that is the player, but you can look for some reserves below. Lead the Alpha T-Rex to a large body of water where you have an aquatic mountain (as good as a Megalodon) then lead the Alpha T-Rex to the deeper part of the water and use the aquatic mountain to kill it. If found by the beach, lead the Alpha T-Rex into the open water with a Wooden Raft (can be made at Level 15) plus another player to antagonize. Then ride the wave so that it sinks and with it very slowly. With aquatic mountains, alpha T-Rex can be lowered easily. Try to get an Alpha T-Rex pinned behind a rock and shoot from a safe distance. Took a friend in a Talon Argentavis and he shot from a safe distance over Rex. In preliminary combat, the only dinosaurs that stand a good chance of an Alpha T-Rex are Giganotosaurus or a highly damage-oriented, Tyrannosaurus or Therizinosaurus. If you have a

Giganotosaurus (with or without saddles) and Spyglass, you can order your Giganotosaurus to attack the Alpha T-Rex, the Alpha T-Rex gets a greater stimulus each leveling than the Giga. So be careful even when fighting with a battle-oriented Giga when facing an alpha T-Rex at a very high level because the difference may mean it can close the gap on or even exceed the initial excess of the Giganotosaurus. Another strategy is to find a big rock, best bigger than your average Rex, and either take an Alpha T-Rex using multiple players who use a variety of players with use Crossbows or lay a foundation and build a turret or two on top of them. Note- Make sure the rock is large enough that the Alpha T-Rex can't reach you. Players with Argentavis can also take an Alpha T-Rex when carefully attacking it from behind, but this strategy takes a little time, as the Alpha T-Rex has a large amount of health. The second tactic, which only works at The Center, involves bringing small herbivores like Dodo, Lystrosaurus, or Phiomia in Argentavis' fingernails and luring Alpha T-Rex into lava flows where it will slowly lose large health pools. When you see his health falling low, just pull to the ground safely and finish with Argentavis. This strategy only requires patience, and you must have an eye for his injuries in order for him to will die in the lava, otherwise you will lose all the spoils and XP. Also, be careful not to fly too close to the lava, as this will kill you in a while and you may lose your treatise as well. One-third, far more dangerous tactics may be because alpha T-Rex attack ranges, such as Rex, are still shorter than spinosaurus attack ranges. Although not not a Spinosaurus can withstand alpha T-Rex by judging until the backup arrives in an emergency. With caution, a strong Spinosaurus can kill a low-level Alpha T-Rex, although it is not nearly as safe as other methods. The fourth tactic includes using a good shield platform saddle. Tribes that bend siege weapons such as Ballista Turret or Minigun Turret, using high-level Brontosaurus, can stand a good chance against the guiet Alpha T-Rex. Having drivers use the Brontosaurus outreach to launch the Alpha T-Rex back while the Gunners unlock on it. This is not recommended with Paraceratherium with established platforms because Paraceratherium has no reach of Brontosaurus to keep Alpha T-Rex at bay, and while faster than the Brontosaurus, it is not quick enough to highlight the Alpha T-Rex for kites. You can also use high-level Pteranodon (wild Levels 140-150) with roll (C). For example, the level of 10 Alpha T-Rex takes about 7 minutes with Pteranodon with 45 levels of damage. It is advisable to find a high position to regenerate Stamina and kill all dinosaurs within the Alpha range to avoid rapid health regeneration. Another tactic uses Woolly Rhino's strong charges. Strong charges may be able to kill one in the 1-4 attack. Another simple strategy is to use the Allosaurus pack. Let alpha Allosaurus use a gore attack to slow alpha T-Rex down so it can continue to be attacked before reaching your tame. An orderly dinos strike consisting of several tanks, such as high-level turtles, as well as a bunch of rexes can take alpha quickly. A rex of 70 levels + can often take alpha rex by itself (ridden), but you still have to be careful. The high reaper king is a pretty potent mountain that the imprint is 100%, 30k hp, 600 animals melee can demolish the alpha 150 rex and suffering at most, 7k damage. Their natural shields, hitting weights, fast hp regens and printed damage resistance make them the main creatures to take almost any ground dino that isn't a wild giga. In addition, they will harvest a large amount of raw premiere meat, and after a 10-minute break can jump back to deal with the overpaid Alpha Creatures. Another strategy to create a row of Plant X Plant Species. They are easy to build and maintain, and do a great DPS when there are many of them. 20 Plant X species can take level 1 Alpha T-Rex in 10 seconds. If the T-Rex is aggrieved on a flying mountain like Argentavis, you can lure Alpha around to die. The main disadvantage of this strategy is, unless you manage to get the Experience to kill Alpha this way. However, you'll still get a booty. Weapons[edit | edit resources] Use mountains, or revolting weapons. Any physical confrontation almost always a certain death. Danger[edit | edit source] NEVER Alpha T-Rex if you're not well willing! It will kill you and your entire tribe in a few moments. Alpha T-Rex is very fast and has a large amount of damage. Alpha T-Rex is capable of destroying any non-metallic structure. Alpha T-Rex footprints can kill you even if Dino's damage is turned off. Weakness[edit | edit source] It is one of the most powerful creatures on land, but in the water it is rather slow, making it more destant to the rapid mountains of water. About 20 Bolt Spear shots with the Ballista Turret (goal for the head) will do the helah for stage one of the Alpha T-Rex, the higher stage may require a large amount more. Edited Notes | edit source] Alpha Megalodon and Alpha Tusoteuthis. Become Rex Skeletal during ARK: Fear develops. The deflating of damage and obstacles given to adjacent carnivores can be seen as pointing arrows, with a + sign inside the arrow. Taming power using console commands may result in gaming misfortune. This may have been established, as the game did not seem to have crashed at 279.22. The tamed power of the Alpha T-Rex may roar, but the wild won't do so. Alpha Rex is the only Alpha on the island to have a trophy head. Reference[edit | edit source]
