.04.2012 15:57 0 ? ppdev does anyone know why evince segfaulted? i use it all the time, i used it last week, and now it just segfaults every time i open a pdf anyone know if it's possible to run a logcheck on just the cron dirs/files? or how do i get it to do so InFlames: you could try ACLs or just man it see what options there are It may just be b/c of where its looking, not sure man page shows you how to set it up for a specific directory just curious if it's possible to do it globally oh it is possible you could just modify the logcheck configuration files or install logcheck and modify its config files I'm not familiar with logcheck I don't use it I use logwatch instead i use logwatch, too I just want to make sure i'm not misconfiguring cron i have a bunch of logs all in /var/log/ and i'm wondering if there's a way to do a logcheck on just the cron logs I'd say yes there is I've never done it but I'd imagine it's the same general concept but just point to a different location I bet the man pages for logcheck will say more that should get you on the right path great, thanks InFlames: logwatch does it, too 520fdb1ae7
