. Hindi Song: Tum Hi Ho Video Tutorial (Guitar Tabs and Chords) I've never done any cover versions of Justin Bieber's songs so far, although my students love to play chords on some of his previous songs (the Yellow Raincoat album had some great guitar parts). Anyway, time to apologize and make a light fingerstyle cover Justin Bieber's latest hit Sorry. You can stay up to date with my Facebook page: results and tabs on my site: And another Bollywood song. This time from him a later film Happy New Year. Is The Apprentice Paradise loves the song, or loves the handsome hero in the movie, or perhaps all three? Anyway, it wasn't an easy song to transcribe, and not an easy song to simplify so that Paradise could enjoy playing a song. However, I think I succeeded. What you see here is easily the intermediate cover of the fingerstyle. There are no complicated bits, nothing complicated, but ... It's so fast! And here's a song with bits from the movie. It was released in 1994, long before the birth of the student Elna. However, Elna asked for a simple version for Christmas this year. Creating a simple version wasn't all that easy though, as the song isn't very simple. So that's not so simple fingerstyle version. I'll download a simple version later. Oh, and it's Santa hat time of year again... Later it turned out that sooner rather than later. Here's a lighter version. Not very easy, to be honest, so let's call it intermediate. But I'm sure Elna will manage: You can stay up to date, like my Facebook page: results and tabs on my site: Marco Borsato is a popular Dutch singer. The melody as well as the accompaniment of his new Song Mooi is rhythmically challenging, and in the outro Marco sings some really high notes. All these ingredients that make the resulting guitar arrangement difficult. But there is a guitar solo, and although the original is electric guitar, it fits better on classical guitar. The electric guitar goes through the pedal delay, reminding me of the sound of U2. To incorporate this delay effect into my arrangement without obscuring the actual melody of the solo, I decided to repeat the fragments in the accompaniment. I think it really worked well. Overall, it's not a simple arrangement, but if you like the song, I think it's worth the arrangement to explore. Intro isn't all that simple to be honest, but on the other hand, it's based on a light chord shape and not so fast, so you'll manage. You can stay up to date, like my Facebook page: results and tabs on my site: And another Bollywood song: Jab Koi Baat Bigad Jaaye from the 1996 film Jurm. The song itself is quite simple, but the intro and instrumental interludes are usually Bollywood with their short phrases and varied orchestration. This time they worked well when arranged for a guitar. To accompany the vocal melody I chose a simple template of choice to give a link to the guitar in the original recording. This arrangement was a paid request. If you have a special song that you want to see arranged for the guitar and you are willing to pay a little more for it, you can send me an email. Here's a clip from the movie with the song: You can stay up to date by like my Facebook page: Results and tabs on my site: Last week was the birthday of Ilse's pupil. She brought chocolate for everyone. And she had a request: Can we play Jessie J's flashlight? I gave her chords and a bit of intro, but she prefers to play the melody. Who can give up chocolate? So I wrote a melody for her. But once I had chords, intros and melody, it was just a small step to make a full-blown finger arrangement. That's what I did. I think it's still too complicated for Ilse, but maybe it's something to work towards. We played many of his old songs in lessons, always a joy, so this time I had a look at his latest single, called Photography. That's since 2014. It's sweet, has simple chords, a nice little guitar lick and a very cute video. Instead of just giving Ravenna chords, I also made her a fingerstyle arrangement. I know there are a lot of very good arrangements out there, but most of them look pretty hard, so I decided to do something that's pretty easy to play: no special effects, no complex chords and no high positions; It should be fun to play! I've done quite a few Ed Sheeran covers so far, so it's time for a playlist: You can stay up to date like my Facebook page: results and tabs on my website. Another intermediate intermediate pop song arrangement: melody in a convenient range on guitar, bass line with some rhythmic variations between different sections of the song and instrumental beats again in a convenient range. Slapping bass notes is not a problem for most of my students until they have to play a melody note at the same time. To avoid this problem, or to give an alternative, I wrote in the score and tab of bass notes that you could play as usual if the slaps were still too hard. Finally I took the time to do it. I'm not sure about all the chords, to be honest, especially the bridge was a challenge to transcribe, but I'm pretty happy with what I did. I hope she does, too.
