The story revolves around the love life of a young orphan girl (played by Richa Gangopadhyay) with a painter (played by Anil Kapoor), who becomes a friend to her after he casts her shadow as his model for his paintings. Filming began on 24 February 2007 in Hyderabad, India. The first scene with Ganesha in which they first meet was filmed in the temple of Mahakaleswar in Bengaluru. Other parts of the film were shot in Hyderabad, Chennai, Mumbai and in the Greek Islands. Billa is the most expensive Indian film ever made. This was done by shooting mostly on digital video and by hiring top stars for minimal pay. The film was released in October 2007 and was well received at the box-office.
