The Stinger review has its roots in the GT Concept with the 2011 Frankfurt Motor Show and the Kia GT4 Stinger from the 2014 North American International Auto Show. Designed by Peter Schreier and Gregory Guillaume (Kia's chief designer) at The European Kia Studio in Frankfurt and designed by former BMW M Vice President of Engineering Albert Birman, the car was unveiled at the 2017 North American International Auto Show. Birman is currently Executive Vice President of Performance and Performance Development for Hyundai Motor Group. According to Guillaume, Stinger's design was partly inspired by a bottle of Coca-Cola. During the interview he gave the following comment about the purpose of the car. The new Kia Stinger is a true Gran turismo, a car for energetic long distances. It's not about direct power, tight-edged dynamics and brutal styling all at the expense of luxury, comfort and grace. Stinger has nothing to do with being the first to arrive at your destination- this car is all about traveling. Tests of the car were involved in more than 1,000 kilometers (620 miles) at the International Circuit of Korea and 10,000 km (6,200 miles) at the Nurburgring Nordschleife. The Stinger uses a shortened version of the front-wheel-drive, rear-wheel-drive Hyundai Genesis platform with additional steel reinforcement and is offered with a choice of two engines: a 2.0-liter turbocharged engine that produces 252 hp (255 hp; 188 kW); and 3342 cm (3.3 litres) 203.9 cu in) a twin-turbo V6 engine that generates 365 hp (370 hp; 272 kW) at 6000 rpm and 510 H·m (376 lb·ft) of torque from 1300-4500 rpm for the AWD variant. For the European and Korean markets, Stinger is offered with a base 2.2-liter CRDi I4 diesel engine, which produces 197 horsepower (200 hp; 147 kW). GT Options Brembo and Michelin tyres. The only gearbox is an 8-speed automatic transmission with five driving modes plus paddle-changers. For the Korean market, Stinger wears a unique E badge that symbolizes the main theme of Engineered by Excellence. Kia claims that Stinger accelerates from 0 to 100 km/h (0-62 mph) in 7.7, 6 and 4.9 seconds respectively. Schreier was reportedly driving a Pre-Series Stinger GT at a top speed of 269 km/h (167 mph) on the autobahn. During the test by car and driver, the all-wheel-drive American GT 3.3T specification with Michelin Pilot Sport 4 tyres reached 0-60 mph (0-97 km/h) in 4.6 seconds on the track, reached 0.91 g on the skipad and was able to stop at 70 mph (113 km/h) in 164 feet (50 m). According to this publication, the maximum speed of the American model is adjustable at 167 mph (269 km/h) on the Kia specification. In tests, Held by Motor Trend, the 4-cylinder American specification Of the Stinger 2.0 RWD on Bridgestone Potenza tires reached 60 mph (97 kph) in 6.6 seconds, completed a 1/4-mile (0.4 km) run in 15 seconds and stopped at 60 mph (97 kph) at 126 feet (38 m). The average lateral acceleration recorded in track testing was 0.85 G. In August 2020, Kia unveiled an updated Stinger, which will be sold in Korea in the third quarter of 2020 and worldwide by the end of the year. Style updates include revised headlights and taillights, a new 10.25-inch infotainment screen and an optional wheel design. Kia has also added an additional 2.5L Smartstream FR G2.5 T-GDi engine produced by 304 hp (224 kW, 300 hp), as well as variable exhaust to the existing 3.3 Lambda L RS T-GDi, which increases power by 3 hp (2.2 kW; 3.0 hp).
