Players must plan their cities and production chains over longer distances and according to the conditions of the different islands. Also new in the Tropico series: Raids. With the four unique raid buildings, players can send their Tropicans on raids, resulting in different outcomes, such as getting additional resources, technologies, manipulating trade prices, changing diplomatic ratings and preventing the various superpowers from sabotaging Tropico. There are also specialized raids for multiplayer mode, offering a subtle way to sabotage your rivals. With the raid buildings, players also have the opportunity to undertake World Wonder Heists. Each heist has a unique narrative plot that fits Tropico's unique tone. Up to 17 World Wonders are waiting to be stolen, including famous landmarks such as Stonehenge, the Eiffel Tower and the Statue of Liberty. World Wonders are unique buildings with a strong impact on gameplay. Therefore, Only be able to complete a World Wonder heist by era, so the maximum of World Wonders on an island in a standard game is 4. In order to create a Glimpse at the impact of the World Wonders, Stonehenge for example, trees and coconut trees will grow faster in the immediate vicinity around the landmark.
