Concept designer and artist Simon Stalenhag has released his first art book called Tales of the Loop, which is currently available on Amazon. Simon Stalhaga's Tales from the Loop is a wildly successful crowdfunding project that takes viewers on an amazing sci-fi journey through the various landscapes of the country and city, from the small cities of Sweden and the deserts of Nevada to the bitter cold of Siberia, where children explore and interact with abandoned robots, vehicles and techniques large and small, while dinosaurs and other creatures roam our roads and fields. Svelhnagag's paintings and stories take place in an alternate version of Sweden in the 80s and 90s, primarily in the countryside of Melaryarn, a string of islands west of Stockholm, and how this reality occurred: the development of a loop, a large particle accelerator and the side effects of a massive project. Tales from the Loop is based on drawings, in particular, on a 2014 narrative fiction book of the same name by Swedish artist Simon Stenhag; moreover, drawing inspiration from the fact Stuleenhag never fully explains what sci-fi objects he depicts to do and where they come from. The team, led by visual effects producer Andrea Noll, tried to preserve the scenic feeling of Stulenhag's works by receiving outstanding special effects in the Emmy nomination. In his attempts to crack the code of the cinematographer Stenhag Jeff Kronenvet decided to shoot night scenes at dusk. Admission on Rotten Tomatoes Season 1 has a Certified Fresh approval rating of 84% based on 62 reviews, with an average rating of 7.28/10. On Metacritic, Season 1 has a score of 68% based on reviews from 14 critics. David Baird of the Catholic Church B.C. describes the series as a set of loosely interconnected meditations on ephemerality, the influence of technology and human vulnerability imbued with the mild taste of science fiction and considers it an enticing fusion of predictive nostalgia. Joshua Thomas of the Michigan Daily considers it an excellent sci-fi; exactly what a good sci-fi should look like. Writing for Firstpost, Prahlad Srihari believes that his wide frames, symmetrical frames and play of light and space are all triumphant in the retrofuturistic vision of S greatesthag. According to Joshua Rivera of The Verge, Tales from the loop are so beautiful that it breaks your heart. Writing for Slashfilm, Hoai-Tran Bui believes the show explores universal elements of grief, aging, parenthood, loneliness and love, but also that it often blurs the line between alluring and boring. Charlie Hall of Polygon, meanwhile, was left feeling restless and confused.
