Johnson family vacation 2

Seattle Center, home to a futuristic space needle, is the cultural center of the city. Its 74 acres are full of enough high-quality entertainment to keep the family happy for days. To view the Seattle Center and beyond, the deck of the Space Needle is a glass-enclosed elevator for the 41-second journey to its peak. It will bring you 150 meters above ground, where you can dine in a rotating restaurant or walk around the observation point for the fabulous skyline of downtown Seattle, Puget Sound, Lake Union, and Mount Rainier. The Pacific Science Center ad has attractions for every family member. You can learn how an animatronic dinosaur works and walk through a warm, humid tropical butterfly house. The antics of East African naked mole rats, some of the most unusual animals you'll ever see, are endlessly entertaining. Feel the vibe as you step inside a giant guitar to explore the art and science of music, or settle into your seat and enjoy some stargazing through a live presentation in the planetarium. The Children's Museum in Seattle is full of adventure. Visitors of all ages have sent balls through the bustling cityscape of pulleys, pipes, mazes, and levers to learn about the cause and effect in Cog City. In mindscape technology studio, your kids can record a song or become part of a virtual reality video game. An artist-in-residence is always on hand to lead children through art projects that involve various exhibits in a drop-in art studio. An assee can be enjoyed at Discovery Bay. Seattle Center is home to one of the best children's theaters in the country. The Seattle Children's Theater stages top-notch performances of classic children's literature and new works as well. At the end of each performance, cast members return to the stage to perform a question-and-answer period with members of a young audience. The Experience Music Project, housed in an exotic, gleaming, freeform building designed by Frank Gehry, celebrates musical innovation. The museum is a joy for the senses and uses interactive technology and hands-on exhibits to delve into the influences of different types of music. The city's vibrant musical history is featured in an exhibit about famous rock bands that originated in Seattle, including the Jimi Hendrix Experience, Nirvana, and Pearl Jam. The exhibits also portray punk movements and hip-hop explosions. The museum offers an extensive display of artifacts, including musical instruments, handwritten texts, clothing and other memorabilia. Children of all ages will have a visit to the Sound Lab, where they can strap on a guitar, climb behind drum kits, or sit on keys in a soundproof studio and play along with their choice of recorded music. Are you ready for some outdoor entertainment? Visit the International Fountain Center, which attracts children like a magnet during sunny days. Many grassy dumplings and gardens offer ideal places for a family picnic, and the Fun Forest Entertainment Centre offers a variety of children's rides and games. Every Memorial Day weekend, seattle center hosts a celebration of ethnic music, dance, crafts and food. Keep reading to learn about the Northwest Folklife Festival.
